A HISTORY OF PI KAPPA PHI

FOREWORD

IN THE PAGES following I have endeavored to trace the origin of Pi Kappa Phi and the national development of the fraternity during its first twenty-five years. History is a judicial business, and what has been written is of those things which seemed the most significant, or the most interesting, events in the fraternity at the time. It is not possible, unfortunately, to give here thorough treatment to the interesting histories of individual chapters, but it is hoped that their complete story will not be too long delayed. If at times it appears that the magazine of the fraternity is followed with undue attention, it has been either because of a feeling that the condition of the magazine most accurately reflects changing conditions in the fraternity, or because there was no other record. Careful search has been made to establish the personalities, happenings, and influences which have shaped our career, and statements of fact have been authenticated from original records. The material which has been used, in the main, was assembled during the years 1924-1928, while Executive Secretary of the fraternity.

As the history and the directory of membership are complementary to each other, statistical matter has been omitted from the story itself so far as consistency permitted.

For encouragement and aid in collecting early records, my especial thanks are due to Lawrence Harry Mixson, one of the founders of the fraternity, and to John D. Carroll, Supreme Archon, 1913-1919; and for their careful reading of the manuscript and co-operation in planning the book, to A. Pelzer Wagener, Supreme Archon, and Leo H. Pou, Supreme Historian.

A HISTORY OF PI KAPPA PHI

I

THE NEW FRATERNITY

1904-1906

In the progress of each man's character, his relation to the best men, which at first seems only the romance of youth, acquires a graver importance; and he will have learned the lesson of life who is skilled in the ethics of friendship.

—EMERSON

TUDENTS at the College of Charleston twenty-five years ago recall how the established groups on the campus looked with curiosity upon the stripling which, in 1904, set up its own organization and named itself Pi Kappa Phi. It was generally referred to as "the new fraternity."

A new fraternity then, especially in South Carolina, was truly an adventure. In 1897 the Populist party had got control of the state government in South Carolina, and among many radical measures enacted was one entitled "An act to prohibit Greek-letter fraternities or any organization of like nature in State institutions." In 1904 the College of Charleston, in "Lower South Carolina," was one of the few colleges in the state which tolerated fraternities. This is significant of the broad and independent policy which has always characterized the College of Charleston, and also of the obstacles which the new fraternity was to meet. But Charleston itself was a city of romance—and there is romance in fraternity.

The founders of Pi Kappa Phi were Andrew Alexander Kroeg, Lawrence Harry Mixson, and Simon Fogarty. These three soon associated others with them in their enterprise and when, on December 10, 1904, the accepted date of the founding of the fraternity, the first meeting was held, the group consisted of the following, in the order in which the names occur in the minutes:

JAMES FOGARTY	'08
Born 18 August, 1888.
SIMON FOGARTY, JR.	'06
Born 7 June, 1887.
THEODORE BARNWELL KELLY	'08
Born 26 December, 1887.
ANDREW ALEXANDER KROEG, JR.	'05
Born 9 February, 1885.
LAWRENCE HARRY MIXSON	'07
Born 19 August, 1887.
ANTHONY PELZER WAGENER	'06
Born 27 May, 1887.
THOMAS FRANCIS MOSIMANN	'07
Born 20 June, 1884.

All were Charlestonians by birth. If the founding of Pi Kappa Phi could be traced to one individual, Kroeg would probably be considered the founder. His contemporaries so regarded him, for after his death, in 1922, Theodore Kelly wrote of him from California:

"It was in 1904, when a freshman at the College of Charleston, that I met Brother Kroeg, who was an upper classman. It was his brotherly interest shown to the 'poor freshies' that first impressed me, and from that time I held him in high regard.

He was a good, conscientious student, excelling in his studies and taking an interest in college affairs outside the regular classroom work. He was jolly and good-natured, always having a good word for friend and stranger alike. In college affairs he stood always for the right and was a brave opponent of all that was below standard. In the truest sense of the word he was a gentleman. His character was ever above reproach.

It was he who first conceived the idea of organizing a fraternity in the good old days of 1904. He got the bunch together and was really the founder of Pi Kappa Phi. It was he who wrote most of the first constitution of the fraternity and was the guiding hand behind the fraternity from its conception. He, too, was the first to think of expanding the local fraternity at Charleston into a national organization. He had a great vision in those days, and the present high standard of the fraternity is the result of the working out of his dream."

The fraternity was established on a strict basis of friendship. All of the original seven had attended the High School of Charleston, and were friends even before they entered college. Simon Fogarty and Mixson were particularly close to each other, and at college their interests were the same. All took prominent parts in the college life and were thrown more and more together. Rarely was one seen without another. Simon Fogarty played on the football team for four years; was captain, 1905; was on the basketball team three years, captain 1906; Mixson managed the basketball team for three years, was assistant manager of the football team in 1904; and played on the baseball, football, and basketball teams. In 1904 Kroeg was manager of the football team. During this time Wagener, Mosimann, James Fogarty, and Kelly were achieving scholastic and literary honors and taking some part in athletics. Wagener was first honor graduate in 1906, and Mosimann, in 1907. Mosimann served as editor-in-chief of the college magazine, while Wagener was on the editorial staff for two years. James Fogarty received third honor in 1908. It appears that all were members of the Chrestomathic Literary Society, and that each held at one time or another one or more of the three higher offices of the Society.

Literary societies played a far more important part in college life then than they do to-day. This was especially true at the College of Charleston, where strong rivalry existed between the Chrestomathic and Cliosophic societies, which had histories and traditions of their own almost as old and imposing as those of "The Flat Hat" at William and Mary; for the College of Charleston was founded in 1770, and is the oldest institution of higher learning south of Virginia.

So in the Chrestomathic Society these men were early joined in a common organization. When we recall the denominational rivalry and bitterness which has existed in this country at various times in religious matters, it is interesting to note that, of the founders, Kroeg was an Episcopalian, Mixson a Lutheran, and Simon Fogarty a Roman Catholic. James Fogarty and Mosimann were also of the Catholic faith, Kelly was an Episcopalian, and Wagener a Lutheran. As they came into closer and closer association with one another, the thought of giving a name to their friendship grew. As one writer has tersely expressed it, "having the sentiments, ideals, and purposes of a fraternity, there now devolved upon these men the task of obtaining the outward forms and signs of a fraternity."¹

The meeting on December 10 was held at No. 90 Broad Street, Charleston, which was the home of Simon Fogarty. There had been a preliminary meeting on November 29, at the home of Harry Mixson, No. 190 Wentworth Street.

On that fall night, as they sat around the fire and discussed their plans, was taken the initial step which led directly to the meeting which followed on the tenth of December. It was decided to organize, but no definite organization was effected at the time. It was at first suggested, it is said, that the name be Nu Phi.

The original minutes of the meeting of December 10 have been preserved. The use of a simple cipher code² in the transcript illustrates the ideas entertained regarding the secrecy which should veil everything pertaining to fraternities. The spelling of names is reversed. To each other word is prefixed an extra letter taken in alphabetical sequence. By reversing, again, the spelling of names, and remembering to ignore the prefixed letters, the text becomes readily legible, though occasionally the unaccustomed codist has erred in following his system.

From these records we learn that Kroeg was chosen chairman and Mixson, secretary; that Simon Fogarty, Mixson, and Wagener were appointed a committee to draft a constitution; that "the name of the fraternity should be H. K. Φ."; that Fogarty, S. and J. and Mixson were appointed a committee to "see about a suitable pin."

The next meeting was on December 17. Kelly was absent.

The Constitution as submitted was accepted. Under it the following were elected:

Archon,³ A. A. Kroeg, Jr.
 Grapier,⁴ L. H. Mixson
 Arguopares,⁵ S. Fogarty, Jr.
 Historian, L. H. Mixson
 Thuripanioktes,⁶ J. Fogarty

Mr. S. Fogarty moved that the installation of officers take place at this meeting. Seconded and carried. The officers were accordingly installed.

Mr. H. K. Purdy was nominated, seconded, and elected (to membership). There being no further business, the meeting adjourned.

Respectfully submitted,

L. H. MIXSON, Grapier

No copy of this first constitution has been found, but references to it in correspondence and previously published accounts indicate that, rough and incomplete as it was, it incorporated many features which are still recognizable in our present constitution, and that in no case has the spirit or intent been changed.

³ "A ruler" (usually spelled archon), title given to the chief magistrate at Athens.

⁴ "A writer" (the secretary).

⁶ Probably intended to mean "the one who dwells always at the door" (the warden).

The committee on the badge found that much more than a week's work was necessary, and their report was postponed; but other plans went steadily ahead. The election of Henry Klugh Purdy, '08, of Verdery, S.C., was the first actual bid to membership, but no set ritual, as we know it now, was used to "initiate" him. Since he was received during the really formative period of the fraternity, he was always regarded as one of the original group.

On March 4, 1905, Lawrence Orr Bruce, another "out-of-town" student, was received. On April 22 a design for the badge was submitted by Simon Fogarty, and was adopted. "It was a plain, diamond-shaped block of black enamel, bearing across its short diagonal an arched raised band of gold with scrolled edges projecting beyond the body of the pin. On this band were engraved, in black enamel, the Greek letters of Pi Kappa Phi. Engraved in gold on the body of the pin, above and below the band respectively, were the figures of a star and a student's lamp."

On March 25, after the introduction of Bruce, a committee was appointed to draft rituals of initiation and procedure. This important work was in the hands of Mixson, chairman, Simon Fogarty, and Pelzer Wagener. The colors and grip were adopted on April 1, and both are said to have been the ideas of Simon Fogarty. The committee on rituals presented a formal order of procedure on May 20, 1905, which was adopted without change; in fact, through the years following, this form has probably suffered less change than any of the others. The report on the ritual of initiation was deferred, "as obviously there was no hurry about this, inasmuch as the college year was drawing to a close, and no new members were to be taken in till the next session which was to start in October."⁷ of other orders, but the customs of Athens; so deeply had the classic tradition of the college touched them.⁸ They knew that there were deeper and finer things in the lives of the Greeks for a fraternity to emulate than the mystery of its language. They knew that "it was his insistence on friendship as an incentive to a nobler life that was the secret of the power of Socrates." Consistent throughout, their precedents in ceremonials for a fraternity of friends came from the temples of Athené. The obligation was received standing, erect, "with both hands raised to heaven"—as Athenians pledged loyalty to their city and to their gods. They helped each other with their work, following, consciously or not, the rule that "every boy had attached to him some elder youth by whom he was constantly attended, admonished, and trained, and who shared in public estimation the praise and blame of his acts." Later, those who pored over the properties of this ritual became prominent in other fraternal associations—Mixson, a Royal Arch Mason, Knight Templar, Shriner; Fogarty, a Knight of Columbus; Wagener, a Mason; Kroeg, a Chancellor Commander of the Knights of Pythias—but then the rites and ties of these were unknown to them. As friendship had become an institution among the Greeks, so they sought to perfect it among themselves.

By the close of the year, with nine members, the group was well on its way toward real fraternalism. Its members had previously been prominent in college affairs as individuals, and they were beginning to be recognized as a collective force.

Except for the close union and enthusiasm of its members, the circumstances attending the launching of the new fraternity were not auspicious. On December 31, 1904, the College of Charleston had but seventy-two men students; of these thirty-two were from "out-of-town."⁹ Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Alpha (S), and Phi Kappa Sigma had chapters there. The last became inactive the following year. It is a cause of wonder to some of those from our large universities how fraternities exist at small colleges. The explanation lies largely in the fact that there is usually a much higher percentage, in proportion to total enrolment, both of students who belong to fraternities and of four-year men to sustain them. It has been the frequent comment of great fraternity leaders that small colleges furnish first-class chapters.

The college was, however, entering upon an era of expansion.¹⁰ Six years before, a young president had taken charge, and the soundness of his policies was becoming increasingly apparent. The College of Charleston has always been a "liberal arts" college, and has produced some of the foremost thinkers of the country.

The attitude of other students toward "the new fraternity" is reflected in an article concerning the college which appeared in 1924, written by J. Wirron Willson, '08, a prominent athlete in his day and a member of Phi Kappa Sigma, which contains the following statement:

"We recall that a bunch of good fellows associated themselves together, declined a charter in a fraternity of national fame, and began a new fraternity, which now has chapters in many of the colleges of the country with our own College of Charleston as the (seat of the) mother chapter. The writer being a member of another fraternity was not connected with this movement, but it had his silent endorsement and admiration."

The end of the spring term of 1905 was duly celebrated by Pi Kappa Phi with a banquet, at which Simon Fogarty acted as toastmaster. The tenor of thought of those present is indicated by the toasts proposed and those responding to them: "The College of Charleston," Kroeg; "Athletics,"

⁹ Year Book of the City of Charleston, 1904.

¹⁰ The total enrolment for 1926-27 was 352.

In the fall of 1905 there were again but seven. Kroeg had been graduated, and Bruce did not return to college. Kroeg was reading law in Charleston, however, and attended the meetings regularly. Fogarty was elected archon, and Wagener filled the position of treasurer. The report of the committee on the ritual of initiation was presented and adopted on October 21.

On the tenth of December the fraternity celebrated its first anniversary with an informal supper at the residence of Harry Mixson. Thus was inaugurated the custom of Founders' Day, which is now an annual event throughout the fraternity.

In 1906, due to the serious illness of James Fogarty, the meeting place was changed from No. 90 Broad Street to No. 52 St. Philip Street, the home of Theodore Kelly. After the first meeting there, a building which had formerly been used as a schoolhouse, adjoining the Kelly home, was offered to the group. It was subsequently used by them probably longer than any other location. At the beginning of the second term, Pelzer Wagener became archon and Simon Fogarty was again elected treasurer. On February 24, Henry Patrick Wagener, brother of Pelzer Wagener, was elected to membership. There followed the first taste of the battle which must be waged to establish Pi Kappa Phi permanently. The older fraternities, realizing now that from a purely spontaneous union had grown a competitive organization, were determined to prevent Pi Kappa Phi from securing any men they wanted themselves. They were already "rushing" Henry Wagener when he was "bid" by Pi Kappa Phi. He accepted and was initiated on March 24. This was the first use of the ritual of initiation, and the ceremony was pronounced a decided success. As was fitting, the ritual was exemplified by the three founders, Kroeg, Mixson, and Fogarty. The form and manner of presentation of the ritual have been altered several times; but the principles and fundamental teachings, as applied to character, honor, and the ideal of the gentleman, have remained unchanged from their exemplification in that first initiation in Charleston.

During this year the members had been working individually and collectively to increase the influence of the fraternity, as well as to perfect its internal machinery. So well did they labor that, by the time of the second annual banquet, June 18, 1906, Pi Kappa Phi was a fraternity in every sense of the word, and was a recognized factor in all college affairs.

"The fall of 1906 brought many reversals. The national chapters at the college were fighting with might and main to outstrip the local, and, for a time, circumstances seemed to favor them. Simon Fogarty and A. P. Wagener were lost by graduation, and Purdy did not return to college. One new man had been initiated, Kenneth Earle Lowman, of Orangeburg, S.C.; there were left in college, including Lowman, but five members. Amid these depressing circumstances, the third birthday of the fraternity was celebrated, on December 10, 1906."¹¹

One of the delights of those days was to have a feast or supper whenever possible after a meeting, or on any special occasion. In the minutes for November 10, 1906, for instance, Theodore Kelly, the secretary, faithfully records(in code!) that:

"There being no further business, the fraternity adjourned to the spread, at which the following toasts were responded to:

"Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity," Frater Kroeg

"Our New Member",¹² Frater Simon Fogarty

"The Freshman Class," Frater Lowman

"Woman," Frater Mosimann

Toastmaster, Frater Mixson

¹¹ Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity Journal, December, 1910, p. 21.

About this time the leaders in the fraternity had begun to see that, to perpetuate their brotherhood and assure for it regular alumni guidance, a national name was necessary. The first mention of this was in the minutes of October 6, 1906. L. Harry Mixson had succeeded Wagener as archon, and Kelly was secretary. Nothing definite was done then, but Kroeg drafted a constitution for a national organization, which, it is stated, was read and accepted on November 3. Not till December 29, however, was a definite organization set up.

In the beginning it is doubtful if thought of extension of the fraternity outside of the College of Charleston ever occurred to any of the members. They knew little of the procedure for setting up a national organization, and, it will be recalled, Charleston was almost the only college center in the state where fraternities were not viewed as being inspired by the devil. The College of Charleston, indeed, did not champion the fraternity cause; but it had always justly recognized the right of students to organize, and thus, tacitly, it approved. The prospect of establishing additional chapters within the state was remote, and the definite steps taken to bring to a reality the dream which had come to some of them could only have been born of hope and faith in themselves. No finer example can be found of the depth of human instinct for fraternity, and the realness to them of the bond which they had assumed, than this determination to found a new national fraternity in the face of the most prejudiced persecution college fraternities have known.

Yet there was a conservatism evident in their early plans which, there is no doubt, was inculcated by the time-honored college, whose high standard had stood firm against the temptation to secure numbers at the expense of quality, and whose mellowed walls and columns were constant and gracious reminders that it was best to build slowly and wisely.

Most of their ideas were conceived, and their plans discussed, in her halls or beneath the spreading trees on her campus, and it was inevitable that their work should be influenced by the spirit of the institution they knew so well.

In shaping plans for the national organization contemplated, Kroeg's legal training now proved of great assistance. A general meeting was called for December 29, 1906. This was the first Supreme Chapter Convention. The members, by now, had definite ideas of what they were about. A constitution was adopted, and supreme officers elected. The first officers were: Andrew A. Kroeg, Eminent Supreme Archon; Simon Fogarty, Eminent Supreme Grapter; A. Pelzer Wagener, Eminent Supreme Thesaurophulax; L. Harry Mixson, Eminent Supreme Historian; H. Klugh Purdy, Eminent Supreme Thuripanioktes.¹³ The rituals and insignia of the local fraternity were continued practically in toto. "By January 1, 1907, Pi Kappa Phi was a national fraternity with one chapter, South Carolina Alpha, located at the College of Charleston."¹⁴ The active members at the college were duly chartered as an undergraduate chapter. The charter bore the names of James Fogarty, Theodore Kelly, Kenneth Lowman, Harry Mixson, Thomas Mosimann, and Henry Wagener.

¹³ Repetition of dates and names of officers will be avoided hereafter as far as possible, as these may be secured from the chronological tables.

NATIONAL FOUNDATIONS

THE constitution adopted at the first Supreme Chapter Convention is in Mixson's handwriting, though it is said to have been drafted by Kroeg, therefore the two probably wrote it together. For years this record was lost, and it was not, in fact, until the latter part of 1926, twenty years after it was adopted, that it was recovered. The book containing the draft was restored to the fraternity by "Billy" (W. H. Jr.) Monckton, South Carolina, '09, a past supreme treasurer of the fraternity. As an historical document it was in a bad state, but there was that about it which should compensate the most scientific historian. It had been salvaged from some place about his home by his small daughter and, in the way of children, it was to her most suitable for a picture book. When finally returned, the archives of the fraternity were enriched by the choicest collection of child art treasures imaginable! In addition, pages were cut in varying shapes and whole sections of the Supreme Law deleted! (The writer confesses to the thought that the discrimination shown by this young lady would compare very favorably with the legislative changes of later years by some of our supreme bodies!)

The new national constitution provided that the motto should be NIL SEPARABIT¹; the colors, gold² and white;

the flower, the red rose. The pin remained unchanged, but since armorial bearings were not adopted until later, "jeweled pins, rings, fobs, and other ornaments with the fraternity emblems upon them were allowed to be worn." The secret grip was defined, and this remains unchanged. The following selections will indicate how well the foundations of our present laws were laid:

ART. II. The objects of this fraternity shall be the promotion of brotherly love, the perfecting of true friendship, the increasing of fraternal feeling, and the cultivating of refined and moral ideals among its members.

ART. III. The Supreme Chapter is the source of all true and legitimate authority wheresoever established; . . . it possesses original and exclusive jurisdiction and power: To charter and establish the fraternity in universities, colleges, and schools of technology, where the same is not engrafted; to provide a revenue for the Supreme Chapter by means of a representative tax on each subordinate chapter; . . . (and reserves to itself the right, at any time, . . . by proper amendments, to resume any additional powers necessary to promote the well-being and harmony of the fraternity).

ART. IV. The Supreme Chapter of the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity shall consist of all past archons, the supreme officers and supreme representatives from each subordinate chapter. Each past archon, each supreme officer, and each supreme representative shall be entitled to one vote in the Supreme Chapter.

ART. V. The officers of the Supreme Chapter of the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity shall consist of the Eminent Supreme Arcon,³ Eminent Supreme Deputy Arcon, Eminent Supreme Grapter, Eminent Supreme Thesaurophulax, Eminent Supreme Thuripanioktes, Eminent Supreme Historian. There shall also be a Supreme Council, consisting of the Eminent Supreme Arcon, as chairman, and the Eminent Supreme Grapter, as secretary, and three others of the Supreme Chapter elected annually by the Supreme Chapter. It shall in general manage the Fraternity during the recess between conventions.

³To avoid confusion, references to officers hereafter will be by their present legal titles. Until 1911 supreme officers were known only as Eminent Supreme Archon, Eminent Supreme Grapter, Eminent Supreme Thesaurophulax, Eminent Supreme Thuripanioktes, Eminent Supreme Historian. It was then decreed that supreme officers should be known in public relations as Grand President, Grand Vice-president, Grand Secretary, Grand Treasurer, Grand Journalist, Grand Historian, Grand Chaplain, Grand Custodian, Grand Council, retaining the Greek titles for intrafraternity business. At the convention of 1915 this system was done away, and only the Greek titles for both public and private use, continued. In 1921 they were again changed, becoming Supreme Archon, Supreme Treasurer, Supreme Secretary, Supreme Alumni Secretary, and Supreme Editor, as it is now, except that the Supreme Alumni Secretary has again become Supreme Historian.

ART. VI. The officers of the Supreme Chapter shall be elected every two years by the members of the Supreme Chapter, by ballot, a majority of votes being necessary to elect.

ART. VII. (Defining the general duties of the Eminent Supreme Arcon)....No one shall be elected Eminent Supreme Arcon unless he is a college graduate and a past arcon.

It was required that the E.S.D.A. should also be a college graduate and a past arcon; that only past arcons would be eligible for E.S.G. or E.S. Thesaurophulax.

ART. XII. The Eminent Supreme Historian shall keep a record of all the members of the fraternity as reported to him by the historians of the subordinate chapters. He shall be editor-in-chief of any official magazine published in the interest of the fraternity. Any past historian of the fraternity may be elected Eminent Supreme Historian. It shall not be a violation of the law that "one member shall not hold two offices at the same time in the Supreme Chapter," if one of them is Eminent Supreme Historian.

ART. XIII. Each subordinate chapter shall be represented in the Supreme Chapter by supreme representatives, who shall be elected between the first day of October and the first day of December by the subordinate chapters, from among its active members. There shall be one supreme representative for every four active members of a subordinate chapter, but every subordinate chapter shall be represented by at least two supreme representatives. Each supreme representative shall be entitled to one vote on all questions arising at conventions of the fraternity....The expenses of sending supreme representatives to the Supreme Chapter shall be met by the subordinate chapter which they represent.

ART. XIV. The Supreme Council shall decide upon the names of the subordinate chapters

ART. XVIII. The tenth of December is declared to be and established as the anniversary of the organization of the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity.

ART. XX. A petition (for an undergraduate charter) which shall give all particulars concerning the institution, its social standing, etc., must be approved and sanctioned by the Supreme Council of the Fraternity and seventy-five per cent of all the active chapters. In no case shall a chapter be established if there are less than six duly elected applicants.⁴

It is worthy of note that after various changes in the years that followed, the provisions for the Supreme Chapter and the general government of the fraternity are now back to very much the same status as originally planned.

One week following the adoption of the constitution, Theodore Kelly left college to enter the University of California. Just how much this was to mean to the fraternity later, those in Charleston could not know, and it distressed them greatly to lose him.

Kroeg had not been idle with his plans for extension, but he was greatly handicapped. The state institutions were prohibited by law from having fraternities, and some of the denominational colleges had fallen in line and adopted prohibitory regulations of their own. But in different periods the degree of enforcement varied greatly at all of them. Sentiment for and against the restrictions was so divided that in spite of them chapters of national fraternities operated more or less openly. Fraternity men regarded it in the nature of a righteous crusade to extend the privileges of fraternity to those who would otherwise be unable to enjoy them, and as displaying the height of loyalty and zeal for their own order to conduct sub rosa initiations. That feeling was a very natural one, for the sub rosa chapters did bring in many excellent members. But inevitably it brought the charge that fraternities were not law-abiding bodies, and that because of their secrecy, which the press played up continuously, they were an insidious influence in the community. It is in the nature of things that with a prejudice of this kind, where it has secured a temporary hold upon public opinion, opposition fans the flame. Our leaders discovered this and later deliberately withdrew the chapters which had been placed in these institutions, and withheld them until the unjust legislation was revoked.

In 1907, however, there was one other college in South Carolina at which fraternities functioned with the full knowledge of the authorities, and it was from this institution that Pi Kappa Phi received the first definite recognition from without of its national character. In the chapter hall of South Carolina Alpha, on March 9, 1907, "The application from the Presbyterian College of South Carolina, for a charter, was read and was endorsed by the chapter." This application is said to have been largely due to the untiring efforts of Kroeg, and doubtless the relations which led to its presentation had been fostered by the many contacts made by Kroeg, Mixson and Fogarty with the "Up-State" colleges in athletics and other intercollegiate activities. When some days later we read in the Charleston record that a telegram of congratulations was sent to the "Clinton chapter" (South Carolina Beta), and later, in May, that "it was moved that a member of the 'Clinton chapter' be invited to attend the annual banquet," we can realize something of the feelings of those in Charleston on seeing the first extension of the fraternity into a neighboring college.

Fortunately, the records of most of these early meetings are well written, and enable us the better to follow the story of the fraternity through that most formative stage. The distractions of contemporary life had not then intruded upon the more social pleasures of the fraternity conclave. Much time was devoted to debate and forensic display over many trivial matters. We can well imagine, even, the elfish delight in the grapter's rounded sentences, in "the majestic style of Gibbon," or the rhythmic balance of Macaulay, when the personal reading of them never was to be omitted!

Strict observance of all forms and ceremonies was required. In addition to coding the minutes, there were monthly changes in the pass word, and much thought given to improvements in all. The pass word first used was the motto, NIL SEPARABIT; a little later, it was "Work together"; another time, "Loyalty."

Realizing the responsibility assumed in establishing chapters outside of Charleston, steps were taken in the fall of 1907 to secure for the fraternity a legal status, and to protect its name, through incorporation. The Certificate of Incorporation was issued on December 23, 1907, in perpetuity. Pi Kappa Phi was the first national college fraternity to be founded in South Carolina.

At the end of 1907 the second convention of the fraternity was called, to meet in Charleston. During these first years, when the fraternity was small, it was customary to hold general meetings annually, even though elections and consideration of important changes were only scheduled for the regular biennial meetings. These were called "in between" conventions and arose mainly from the desire to build a closer fellowship among the members. This practice was continued, with the exception of 1910, down to 1916, when the membership had grown so that yearly conventions no longer seemed advisable. This second convention was attended by James B. Frazier and John D. O'Bryan, supreme representatives for South Carolina Beta Chapter, while the Mother Chapter was represented by James Fogarty and Henry Wagener. All of the supreme officers, with the exception of Purdy, were present. Practically the only change of note was the election of A. Pelzer Wagener as Supreme Deputy Archon, as this office had not been filled the year before, and he, being in Baltimore at Johns Hopkins during the college year, could not attend to the duties of treasurer. Thomas Mosimann was made Supreme Treasurer and James B. Frazier, of South Carolina Beta, was made a member of the Supreme Council.

Exercises of the Day

The spring and summer of 1908 passed uneventfully. On November 27, however, was read a petition from a group at the University of California which had been chosen and organized by Theodore Kelly. On Kelly's recommendation, the petition was granted at once and on December 12 a formal commission was issued authorizing him to install California Gamma of Pi Kappa Phi. Here, surely, was a pioneer of Pi Kappa Phi!

This was, without doubt, the most significant charter grant in our history. It proves that Pi Kappa Phi was destined from the beginning to be national and not sectional in character. It shows that, even then, this had become the desire of the founders. It recalls the lasting impression which those early members must have received and the desire for fraternity which they retained. When he entered the University of California, Kelly thought at once of establishing his fraternity there, too. His success reflects his confidence, and that which he was able to inspire in others, in the future of Pi Kappa Phi. The university was then, as it is now, the second largest university in the country and a large number of national fraternities were already established there. With what vast optimism the third chapter was chartered three thousand miles away!

It is fitting to pay tribute here to the high courage and aggressiveness of California Gamma through the years that followed. The chapter had to work alone. The supreme officers were willing but unable to be of much assistance. The chapter sent its delegates East to the national conventions, but it was probably not until the Berkeley Convention of 1921 that California Gamma was brought vitally in touch with the fraternity to which it had remained loyal through every difficulty. Pi Kappa Phi owes much to California Gamma.

During 1909 the addition of South Carolina Delta increased the chapter roll to four. The establishment of this chapter was probably due to contacts with members of South Carolina Beta, as Clinton is but a short distance from Greenville, the seat of Furman University.

Up to this time the fraternity had not provided itself with a coat of arms. The first design used was recorded on March 18, 1909. The charges upon the shield differed considerably from those of the design subsequently established. There were two stars instead of three, and in the base, where we now find the crossed swords, appeared a student's lamp. Instead of a lamp and book, the crest consisted of a hand holding a red rose. This design was used until after the convention of 1911.

Notwithstanding this growth in chapters and membership, 1908-09 was a critical year for the fraternity. Growth meant increased expense, and the revenue was negligible. With its largest chapter, California Gamma, taxed to establish itself at a great university, with South Carolina Delta⁵ operating under the rose, and hence less able to appreciate the needs of the national organization and less subject to direct means of securing support, and with the Mother Chapter reduced to a still smaller number and bearing the brunt of the burden, it is plain that the way was a difficult one. Indeed, when we consider the very small amounts paid in at the time there is cause for wonder how the fraternity existed at all. The truth is that the necessary outlays were paid for by the enthusiastic individuals who did the work. In the spring of 1909, for instance, it is recorded that "through the generosity of her alumni, Simon Fogarty, Jr., and L. Harry Mixson, the Alpha Chapter was enabled to meet all her debts and to start off for next year with clean books, penniless but debtless." There is frequent evidence of similar support from loyal members in the later records of every chapter.

⁵ From 1907 till the convention of 1919, undergraduate chapters were named, in order, from the Greek alphabet, prefixed in every instance by the name of the state in which the chapter was located. Then the state prefix was dropped, and it was ordered that upon exhaustion of the Greek alphabet the same should be repeated prefixing each letter with alpha, beta, gamma, etc., according to the number of times the alphabet was being repeated. Hereafter, for clarity's sake, chapters will be referred to by their college names.

The chapter at Presbyterian College came into its share of the difficulties when, at the close of the college in the spring of 1909, the trustees adopted a regulation prohibiting fraternities at the institution. The chapter, however, continued for several years sub rosa.

Now, too, with all of the original members out of college, and with a still newer venture in which each felt, perhaps, an equal sense of responsibility, differences arose within the Mother Chapter. The friendship of those early members had been tried before they bound themselves in bonds of fraternity. Those bonds were now to be tested by their successors, if that fraternity should endure. Not much can be expected of any organization in which differences of opinion do not arise. The worth of the organization is proved by its method of settling them. The following page from the minutes indicates the condition of affairs:

Owing to unfortunate circumstances, disagreements among the fratres, etc., no minutes were kept during the year '08-'09. Meetings were held regularly up to January, '09, and many men were nominated and a few elected. No active steps were taken to bring them into the fraternity and consequently they were lost to us. A great deal of talk arose concerning abandoning the charter, etc., but the men decided to hold on for a while in hopes of the settlement of difficulties. Finally, concessions from both sides being made, an agreement was patched up and the men decided to get busy once more. Consequently, about the end of April, 1909, a meeting was held under the auspices of the Supreme Chapter at the office of E. S. A. Kroeg and it was permanently decided to hold the charter and to reorganize upon a firm basis. New officers were elected. . . . (and) it was decided to obtain some new members even at this late time in the year, so as to be on a firm basis for the ensuing college term. Messrs. Paul E. Scherer and Zeddie L. Mobley were accordingly nominated and duly elected. Fratres were instructed to rush these two men speedily. After other talk, encouragement from the alumni and Supreme

Chapter, and resolutions for work on the part of the men themselves, the chapter adjourned, for the first time in six months, with a fraternal hand-shake all around.

Respectfully submitted,
HENRY P. WAGENER,
Chapter by courtesy

This was probably the first instance in which the supreme officers had to exert their prerogatives to settle a serious chapter difficulty. The meetings were continued in Kroeg's office for some weeks. The result of this close co-operation of officers and alumni is apparent in the record of the final meeting of the spring term, and shows the high state of fraternal feeling which ensued following the events of the past year.

"On the evening of Saturday, July 12, 1909, at the old Pi Kappa Phi Hall, 52 St. Philip Street, was held a very successful final meeting of the Alpha Chapter for the session 1908-09. Frater T. B. Kelly, California Gamma; James Fogarty, of Columbia University; and A. Pelzer Wagener, of Johns Hopkins, were present and assisted in the exercises. The old initiation team of Kroeg, Fogarty, and Mixson, was well-oiled and sent in for business! Messrs. Paul Ehrman Scherer of Charleston and Zeddie L. Mobley of Heath Springs, S.C. were very successfully initiated. Owing to lack of time, the Chamber of Horrors was unfortunately forced to be considerably abbreviated. After the initiation the members adjourned to the banquet hall where a supper was served. This was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. Eloquent speeches were made by the various members in response to toasts and resolutions for the new year were made in abundance and with hearty feelings. And so with the best of wishes all around and with a true fraternal farewell, the S. C. Alpha Chapter disbanded to meet once more in October, 1909."

The last convention had been held during the Christmas holidays, but the Supreme Council decided later that a more convenient and satisfactory time would be during the summer. Accordingly the time for the next general meeting was set for July, 1909, at the Isle of Palms, a few miles from Charleston. There were now nearly seventy scattered members, and an attractive booklet was gotten out in the hope of increasing attendance. The resulting attendance was disappointingly small in proportion to the expectations of those in charge; but, in the light of subsequent convention experience, the percentage was very good.

This was the regular biennial business session, and much time was taken up with detail. It was decided to assess each chapter dues upon a per capita basis, payable in two instalments during the college year. Authorization was given for the appointment of an official jeweler and enforcement of rules regarding the ordering of insignia. A pledge button, circular in shape, half gold, half white, was adopted and the issuance of membership certificates was approved. It was agreed to authorize the use of a "shield" (of arms), and a committee was appointed to prepare a design. Regulations were adopted concerning the rendering of reports by chapter secretaries and historians. In short, the creators of the spirit of a fraternity were now anxious to improve its material structure as well.

No other changes were made in the laws, rituals or insignia, but the most far-reaching move of all was the authorization of an official magazine. It was proposed by Henry Wagener, of Charleston, and it was probably he also who suggested that it be called The Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity Journal. The constitution provided that the Supreme Historian should be "the editor of any official magazine published," and, as Wagener wrote later, since every body seemed to be about as hazy about fraternity journals as he was he was promptly elected to that office. In the general election held at the same time, T. F. Mosimann became Supreme Archon to succeed Kroeg. The latter acted as toastmaster at the banquet in Charleston which concluded the convention.

In October, 1909, the first number of the Journal appeared. It contained but 21 pages, size 6 x 9, in a plain white cover, bearing the letters Π Κ Φ diagonally from left to right. It was, however, well written and well printed, on good stock. This number and succeeding ones, through August, 1911, were printed by the Walker, Evans and Cogswell Company, of Charleston, one of the oldest printing houses in the South, who had been official printers to the Confederacy throughout the War Between the States. Henry Wagener was editor-in-chief, with Andrew Kroeg as his associate. The contents consisted of a directory of officers; an account of the preceding convention; personal notes; chapter letters from Alpha, Beta, and Gamma; several excellent editorials; and biographical sketches of Kroeg, Pelzer Wagener, Simon Fogarty, and Mixson. This lay-out was followed, in general, during the next two years.

This number also urged the submission of Pi Kappa Phi songs, and offered a jewelled Pi Kappa Phi pin to the composer of the one selected as the fraternity song. The early chapter letters were marked by more sincerity of tone and evidence of careful writing than is the fashion of today. A few familiar phrases occur, but it was not until several years later that "the cream of the campus," the "best bunch of freshmen in school," et cetera, began to appear, which correspondents still seem to regard as the most original expressions in the language!

A letter from Henry Wagener in 1925 contains interesting recollections on the early history of the magazine:

"When I look back on that first venture, I am surprised at my temerity. We had, as I recall it, less than 100 members and either four or five chapters, two of which were sub-rosa. We did not have sense enough to make active chapter subscriptions compulsory and were therefore dependent on voluntary subscriptions which, naturally, for a new and untried venture, were difficult to obtain. We were constantly financially on the verge of bankruptcy and were very often almost the same in a literary way. For with such a limited field to draw from we were often shy on chapter letters and fraternity news and we had to pad. We did however make a start and showed that one way to knit our chapters close together and to hold the interest of the alumni was through the magazine. I think also that, through the Journal, poor as it was, we were able to advertise the fact that we had an active and growing fraternity. I early endeavored to establish exchanges with other fraternity journals in order to make our fraternity better known to the Greek world and to get their ideas on organization and the like. I think the Journal was of some aid to the fraternity in this way. At the Columbia Convention the name of the Journal was changed to The Star and Lamp (after much acrid discussion) and the cover design was also changed. Dillingham was put in charge with the title of Eminent Supreme Journalist and at his request I continued as Editor. While the size and contents of the Journal improved as our membership grew and we were able to increase expenses a bit, financial difficulties still confronted us and Dillingham eventually resigned, thus automatically severing my connection with the publication. Harry Mixson, who was then E. S. A., tided it over until the next convention."

HENRY PATRICK WAGENER
Founder and First Editor of the Magazine

Two editorials from that first issue are especially worthy of reproduction here. The one on the fraternity magazine would apply admirably to any fraternity publication to-day. Both this one and the other on "Fraternity" have since been reprinted in Banta's Greek Exchange.

"In compliance with the action taken at the last convention, the Eminent Supreme Historian takes pleasure in presenting herewith to the officers and members of the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity the first number of the official Journal. For pecuniary and other reasons it has not been possible to make the issue as full as might otherwise have been desirable. It has been deemed advisable to make the publication quarterly, and to have it appear on the first days of October, January, April, and July.....

A fraternity magazine is something apart from all other publications. It contains neither fiction, nor science, nor religion. It is intended primarily neither to amuse, to educate, nor to edify. It is intended first and foremost to be a bond of friendship. With chapters scattered from ocean to ocean, with individuals dotting the whole country, with the two extremities seldom, if ever, coming into contact and relationship, what is there to bind together the members of a big fraternity? Of course there is the sense that we all profess the same vows and are under the guidance of the same principles; but this is something intangible, and not apt to be always powerful and binding. What interest can I feel in a man of whom I know only the name? With some intimate knowledge of his character and doings, I have some foundation for friendship. To furnish such foundation must be the object of a fraternity journal. In chapters as a whole, in their continuance and success, an unconnected fraternity man may be interested. But for their individual members he can care nothing without a more intimate personal acquaintance. How can he establish this friendship with a man thousands of miles away? Primarily through the agency of his journal. Our Journal is to be the chain of acquaintance, not only from chapter to chapter, but from man to man. Naturally we want chapter records; but more than all we want records of men, personal details which mean so much for friendship. We wish this Journal to be the bond which shall bind together the hearts of all Pi Kappa Phi men, active college men and alumni; from the greenest freshman to the sagest justice in our pack. Greater intimacy, more true inter-chapter fraternity spirit is to be our goal."

FRATERNITY

There is no sentiment more powerful in the relationships between men and women than is love. There is no principle more active in the inter-relations of men and women than is friendship, brotherly love. Through all times men have striven for the closer binding, the firmer establishment of this uniting bond. Their struggle has resulted in the formation of fraternal orders. College fraternities, Masons, Knights of Pythias, and all such bodies have this for their basic creed. Naturally, each has its special signification. Each stands for some definite function in business, society, education, religion, or whatever its particular sphere. Some organizations are distinctly representative of one. Some include several. And even within the same order we are apt to find subdivisions. Influenced by external forces, this or that local band lays emphasis on some principle or purpose elsewhere unemphasized. Thus there are countless bodies of men and women varying in extreme in composition, in principles, in ideas, and in purposes; all of whom, however, are brought together by their search for mutual friendship.

The principle which animates such organizations and which inspired their institution, the natural craving, actual need, indeed, for true friendship and brotherhood, including the recognition of the strength and mutual gain acquired by close and intimate association in the bonds of fellowship, may be styled the sense of Fraternity. All fraternal organizations have for their lowest and foremost foundation the desire for brotherhood, unselfish, undying friendship, interdependence and interreliance. The stronger this mutual love, the stronger is the order, the more capable of performing its function. Without harmony, active, meaning harmony, local branches are powerless. As soon as the spirit of brotherly love throughout the national organization dies out, all chances for external or internal success are at an end. With brotherhood, fraternities are invaluable. Without brotherhood, they are worse than useless.

Laying aside the immense value of associative orders in the purely physical struggle of life, there is no worldly organization which can better aid the spiritual side of man's nature than a fraternity, if conducted to live up to its basic principle; for its power is due solely to this active, living force, Fraternity. There is no principle more ennobling than true, unselfish friendship; no force stronger in the building of character than the love of fellowman. Holding brotherly friendship as the keystone of their formation, and as their watchword, the main object of a fraternity should be character founding and fixing. Were all fraternities professing as their sole object the training and culture of their members in the road to true manhood, to uphold and practice their teaching, there could and would be no grander secular institution in the world.

Fraternity should be to us an active, not a passive principle. It is, for those who correctly understand it, an inspiration toward all that is better in human life. Without association with other men, our characters remain unformed. Fraternal association moves toward proper formation. Brotherly love exterminates all the petty feelings of man's nature and brings to view the larger, nobler traits which are in embryo in every man, and which merely need the proper stimulus to which they must sooner or later respond. Fraternity means mutual appreciation, self-knowledge, mutual knowledge. Fraternity teaches a man first to learn and to appreciate his own strength and weakness, and then to recognize the strength of his fellow. In fraternal association these weave backwards and forwards in and out among each other until a working whole is constituted powerful even in its weakness. For to each man through his weakness is lent his brother's strength. Close association with a few brothers teaches a man to appraise the outside world, to influence it by his strength, and through brotherly assistance to be influenced in his weak points. Fraternity lends strength to each individual and strength to the whole. It teaches the men under its influence to be creators of circumstances, to be rulers of themselves and hence to be rulers of the world. Let a man through fraternity be made capable of fraternity and he need never fear character destruction. Fraternity is a powerful and peculiar force. Real fraternity can never harm or impoverish, and often cheers and enriches. The capability for fraternity is a gift from the divine.

The main object of a fraternity, then, should be exercise of Fraternity. All other purposes should sink into insignificance beside this. Not that all other sides of life should be dropped; for often they may cooperate and aid. But every conflicting element should be done away. The members of a fraternity should learn through Fraternity to know themselves, to know their brother, to rule themselves, to become forceful men, powerful in this world's regard; to be noble men of character irreproachable, powerful in the spirit of the world to come; to be, in short, men really great. With this accomplished, no fraternity need be ashamed of its work. May it be the goal and well-accomplished task of Pi Kappa Phi to lead through trials and despair to the clear light of a noble spirit, great now and great forever.

Another editorial in February, 1910 touches on the same theme.

"You should expect from the Journal not an exact monetary return in number of pages and amount of fact or fiction, but a message from man to man, which shall put us in touch with our brother across the continent and make us feel that we have a share in his joys and sorrows, and that he has a share in ours. . . . It is our most heartfelt wish that all relations to the editors and to the Journal should be in the light of our chosen motto: 'A Bond of Friendship, Man to Man, and Soul to Soul.'"

This number carried also a notice of the first death in the fraternity, in the loss of Harold Burr Millis, archon of the California chapter, who was drowned off the Oregon Coast with the sinking of the steamer Czarina.

In these early numbers was indicated a creditable degree of participation in college activities by members of the active chapters, considering the very small active chapter membership. California had some particularly prominent men, and the university, even then, had over 6,000 students.

The session of 1909-10 opened with good prospects, though the two sub rosa chapters were in need of supervision and advice. Accordingly Kroeg and Mixson were delegated by the Supreme Archon to visit them. As a result, the Presbyterian and Furman chapters were, for a time, again placed on a satisfactory basis. Chapter letters indicate that there were frequent visits from supreme officers and alumni, both because these men realized the weakness of the fraternity in supervision and general administration and because of their own personal desire for fraternal contacts.

During the winter Mosimann and Kelly became convinced that they could not discharge the work of their respective offices; the former on account of his health and teaching duties, the latter because of the great distance separating him from the center of activities. Therefore, on February

Second Supreme Archon of the Fraternity

20, both resigned. Andrew Kroeg was chosen to fill the unexpired term of Mosimann. Mixson succeeded Kelly as Supreme Secretary. Mosimann and Kelly were elected to the places of Kroeg and Mixson on the Supreme Council, so that the personnel of officers remained the same.

While Mosimann was the head of the fraternity for only a very short time, his term is distinguished by one important act—the actual beginning of the official journal.

In March the chapter roll was increased to five by the chartering of Sigma Chapter at the University of South Carolina. The form of charter issued then was not an engraved document suitable for display, as is the case now, but a lengthy paper drawn in legal style, and doubtless prepared in Kroeg's office, stating that:

"WHEREAS, An Application has been made to the Supreme Chapter of the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity for a Charter, and WHEREAS A Certificate of Institution has been granted by the Supreme Chapter....to certain students of the University of South Carolina...., Now Know All Men By These Presents that the Supreme Chapter . . . by virtue of authority vested in it by the Constitution of the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity, has granted . . . this Charter."

The charter also contained complete by-laws for the chapter, and bore both the seal of the Supreme Chapter and that of the new chapter.

Having no permanent headquarters at that time, in April, 1910, the Supreme Council "appointed the Charleston chapter custodian of the Charter (Certificate of Incorporation) granted to the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity by the State of South Carolina." It has been carefully preserved there ever since.

The third issue of the Journal indicates the alertness with which Pi Kappa Phi was even then following interfraternity affairs. It contained a pointed article by Kroeg on "Interfraternity Relations" apropos of the meeting called in New York by President Faunce of Brown (November, 1909), which resulted in the formation of the Interfraternity Conference, as we know it now, and which constituted the first meeting of that body. The fraternity was also keeping in close touch with the achievements of its alumni.

For the first time we now find a definite announcement of an official jeweler being appointed. This was the same firm which had made the first pins worn: Messrs. Wright, Kay and Company, of Detroit.

No convention was held that summer, as "the change of officers in the middle of the term made it almost impossible to get matters in shape for discussion and serious work." As it had been planned that the July number of the magazine should cover the summer convention, this was also omitted.

Meanwhile the chapters for the most part moved along satisfactorily. It was very much desired to bring California into closer touch with the fraternity in the South; but due to the great distance and slow communication, except for the medium afforded by the Journal and the presence there of Theodore Kelly, it was impossible for much to be done. The California chapter was, however, established in a chapter house and this was of great value in maintaining the chapter morale. The other chapters were all handicapped in this respect. The Charleston chapter did have a house; but the members lived at home, and hence did not have the close chapter life enjoyed where members live together. The other South Carolina chapters being sub rosa, had no chapter houses. Each chapter continued to maintain a good standing on its campus, however. California received a particularly good start in university affairs by getting men like Dave Hardy and Chester Prouty, who made the fraternity known through their own accomplishments. In December, 1910, Charleston's eleven active men included the presidents of the sophomore and senior classes.

The results of the first song contest were not representative. The two songs selected as best were published, however, in the Journal for April, 1911, with an editorial urging members to submit others. These were two adaptations of nationally known airs, both anonymous; the one set to the Welsh National Air, the other to "Maryland, My Maryland." In 1911 the Charleston Chapter adopted as a fraternity whistle call the notes corresponding to the words "I'm coming, I'm coming," from "Old Black Joe," the answer being the notes following, "For my head is bending low." At the convention of 1916 this call was adopted for general use.

Another forward-looking step taken by the editors of the magazine was the announcement in April, 1911, of life subscriptions to the Journal at $20 each. L. Harry Mixson was the first, and for a time, the only life subscriber. Continued attention was given to the doings of other fraternities, and to interfraternity thought in general. Among the first exchanges received in 1910 were the publications of Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Tau Omega, Kappa Alpha (S), Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Kappa Psi. We are glad to repeat now the acknowledgment made then of these friendly advances, and to add that this spirit has been particularly evidenced by these fraternities ever since. In 1911 was reprinted an editorial from The Rainbow of Delta Tau Delta condemning the high school fraternity. The soundness of this position was justified later when over half of the states had passed specific laws prohibiting fraternities in public high schools, whereas the few states which had laws against college fraternities repealed them.

In April, 1911, the Wofford chapter was installed. The question of the time and place of the next convention had meanwhile come up, and a special meeting of supreme officers was called co-incident with the installation in Spartanburg. The addition of Wofford brought the chapter roll to six; but due to anti-fraternity regulations the chapter at Presbyterian College was practically inactive. For the first time the convention was set outside of Charleston, and logically it went to Columbia, the capital and the geographical center of the state.

Indicating the administrative methods of Kroeg, then Supreme Archon, the Journal for April announced the appointment of committees on credentials, chapters, extension, constitution and laws, state of the order, rituals, time and place of the next convention, and auditing, to report at the meeting on July 4.

When the delegates assembled in Columbia, however, Kroeg was unable to preside, due to a sudden illness. Simon Fogarty, Supreme Deputy Archon, took charge and the convention was called to order at 4:00 P.M., Tuesday, July 4, 1911. The "exhibits" accompanying the records of this meeting, which contained the committee reports and recommendations, have been lost; but the minutes are otherwise complete. Delegates were present from all chapters except California. The representatives from the South Carolina chapter were John D. Hamer and John D. Carroll, and their introduction to the fraternity at large is noteworthy. Carroll later held a number of high offices, remaining longer than any other in continuous service as a supreme officer (twelve and one-half years), and proving one of the most zealous leaders the fraternity has had. During his administration Hamer became editor of the magazine.

In accepting the report of the committee on extension, the convention directed (on motion by Carroll) that fifty per cent "of the net proceeds of each term be appropriated to this committee for use in its work."

It was also "urged" upon the committee (on motion by Mixson) that "the percentage of open chapters be increased."⁶

⁶ Mixson's recollection is that the motion as passed was much stronger—that the question debated was "that no more sub rosa

The committee on chapters was given more power, under the direction of the Supreme Council, to correct irregularities in chapter matters.

It was ruled that each member should be furnished on the night of his initiation with a pin (the style to be decided by the local chapter) and a certificate of membership.

A committee was appointed (on motion by Carroll) to draft resolutions "to be submitted to subordinate chapters disparaging ungentlemanly conduct in chapter rooms." Gambling in chapter rooms was prohibited "on pain of forfeiture of chapter charter."

It was decided that all Pi Kappa Phi emblems should be ordered from the official jewelers on blanks to be furnished for the purpose. Orders for active men should be countersigned by the secretary of the local chapter, and for alumni, by the Supreme Secretary. A copy of the coat of arms was to be sent to each chapter.

A revised codification of the constitution and supreme by-laws was adopted. Certain revisions in the rituals were also adopted.

A chapter seal was authorized, to consist of the name PI KAPPA PHI FRATERNITY and the year of the installation of the chapter arranged in a circle of "dollar" size, with the Greek capital designating the chapter name placed in the center.

A new pledge pin was adopted, of the form of "our regulation plain pin, above the band, gold enamel, below the band, white enamel; no emblems, and without bevelled edge."

"L. Harry Mixson moved that we affiliate with the National Association of Fraternities in the Annual Pan-Hellenic Congress."⁷ chapters be chartered, and if any of the present sub rosas lose their charters, they shall not be restored except as open chapters."

⁷This was the first convention of Pi Kappa Phi following the formation of the Interfraternity Conference in 1909.

The name of the official magazine was changed to The Star and Lamp.

An official hat band was proposed by Mixson and adopted.⁸

The Greek titles for supreme officers were made secret and English equivalents authorized for public use. Such substitutes were "Grand President," for Eminent Supreme Archon, and "Grand Secretary," for Eminent Supreme Grapter.

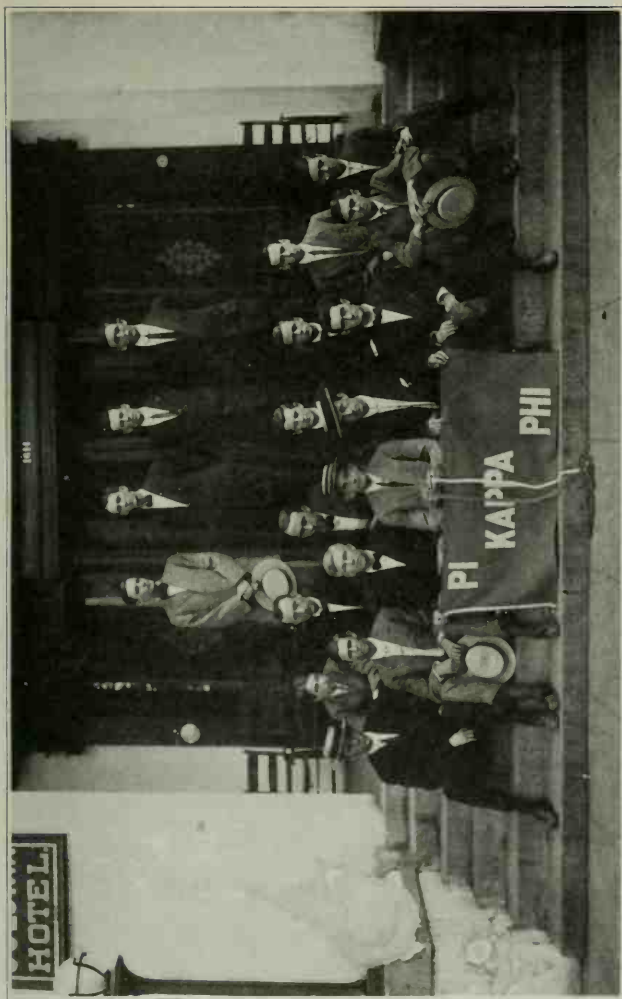

Chas. K. Dillingham and James Fogarty were appointed a committee to report on a revised coat of arms.

A special sign of recognition for ladies wearing the fraternity's emblems, sometimes known as the "sister grip," was adopted. The custom has since been disallowed. It was moved by Mixson "that it be the sense of the convention that a man give to but one lady at a time, excepting his sister, a pin of the fraternity!"

No copy of the revised constitution adopted has been found. The revisions were largely drafted by Kroeg, as the previous ones had been. In the simple sentence regarding the "percentage of open chapters" are apparent the consciousness of the position of the fraternity in relation to sub rosa chapters and the desire to be relieved of the necessity for them. In other words, the delegates felt (and many of them were members of sub rosa chapters) that the course pursued in South Carolina had been justified by an unjust law, but they did not wish to establish such chapters elsewhere, nor to reestablish any which might fail.

John D. Hamer and William Hartz were the committee which recommended changing the name of the magazine to The Star and Lamp, but the name itself is said to have been suggested by R. E. Moody, of Wofford. In an effort to secure more regular financial support for the magazine, active chapter members and alumni for two years after they ceased to be active, were required to subscribe to the magazine. It was later found impracticable to enforce this plan. The office of editor was made separate from that of Supreme Historian.

FOURTH CONVENTION OF THE SUPREME CHAPTER

The business of the convention closed with the election of officers, Mixson succeeding Kroeg as Supreme Archon. Carroll was elected Supreme Secretary, and Charles K. Dillingham became editor of The Star and Lamp, with the title of Grand Journalist. The office of Supreme Chaplain was created. Attention at these early conventions to the geographical distribution of national officers is noticeable. Neither Harry Long nor Dave Hardy (both of California) were present in Columbia, but the former was elected Supreme Treasurer and the latter Councilman from the West. Care was always exercised to avoid dissension through one section or group of chapters holding absolute control. It was provided by law that one member of the Council should be from the East, one from the West (of the Mississippi River) and one at large.

Aside from the amount of detailed business undertaken, the convention had been notable for its spirit of fellowship. Everyone who was there seems to recall most vividly the presence of "Steamboat Bill," the baby alligator mascot which Harry Mixson had brought back from Florida, and now led about by streamers of gold and white! El lagarto was not large, but he was lively. He commanded the awe and respect, if not the love, of every Pi Kapp. He appeared in unexpected places, of his own volition, or with assistance. The sight of the Eminent Supreme Thuripanioktes, in his wild chase down the corridors of the Colonia Hotel, with his nocturnal apparel boasting an appendage of live alligator, remains a fond reminiscence. But "Steamboat" found this life too exciting, for shortly after he disappeared.

The final banquet at the Colonia Hotel was presided over by Mixson, as toastmaster.

Immediately following the convention, Mixson announced the appointment of standing committees to serve until the next convention. The officers took hold of their work with zest. Much accomplishment was anticipated. In the last number of The Pi Kappa Phi Journal appeared the first announcement of the authorization of a miniature Pi Kappa Phi pin, intended for formal wear, but more popular with the girls.

With the increased responsibilities of administration, the problems and difficulties of the fraternity began to multiply. It is too often true that after an inspiring meeting, officers return home filled with zeal for accomplishment only to find that personal affairs require their whole time. It was in the nature of such unselfish service that there should be many delays, and much duplication of effort. In the detailed completion of his work, each carried on alone, with methods good or bad, as his time and facilities permitted. But each recognized the earnest desires of the others, and in their common striving to bring the fraternity nearer to the ideal they had conceived, there developed a camaraderie among the successive national officers which has made the Supreme Chapter truly worthy of its name—a chapter grand.

Mixson emphasized two objectives during his administration: extension and revision of rituals. It was realized that the anti-fraternity sentiment in South Carolina left the fraternity in a precarious position as to future national growth, unless additional chapters were placed in other states.

In November, 1911, the first number of the new Star and Lamp appeared. The size remained the same, but a brown paper cover was used, bearing the first published impression of the revised coat of arms. A special committee had been appointed, but the design is said to have been largely the work of John D. Carroll. In its fundamentals, it is the same as the one in use to-day, but the chevron was of white, and the field of the shield, of gold, bearing in chief three stars, one over two, and in base two crossed swords, points downwards. The ribbon bore the motto NIL SEPARABIT.

FOUNDER LAWRENCE HARRY MIXSON
Fourth Supreme Archon of the Fraternity

The design was properly symbolic according to the colors of the fraternity, but ignored the canons of English heraldry, to which most fraternity arms seek to conform. Later these flaws were corrected by changing the gold field to blue, and the chevron to gold. The general features of the design were, however, the same as at present.

The new magazine (though the actual editing was done by Henry Wagener as before) showed a realization of the necessity for maintaining more general "reader interest." In addition to the regular fraternity features, the first number carried an interesting article by Pelzer Wagener concerning his travels in Italy. The second number contained a similar one by Theodore Kelly on his experiences in the Sierra Nevadas.

The seventh chapter was established at Davidson College, February 3, 1912. It was the first chapter installation not in charge of one of the founders. It had been planned that Mixson should officiate, but due to his marriage on February 6, the institution was carried out by the Supreme Secretary, John Carroll. In April, Eta was established at Emory.

The year had passed swiftly. The last convention had voted to meet next at the seashore, and it was now decided to hold the "extra session" for 1912 at Wrightsville Beach, Wilmington, N.C., July 9-11. Hanover Inn was headquarters; but the meetings were held in "Fraternity Hall," a cottage turned over to the fraternity by the Inn for the purpose. Mixson and Kroeg, unfortunately, were both absent, the former being reported in Tennessee recovering from illness. The Supreme Deputy Archon was also unavoidably absent, and as the next ranking officer, John D. Carroll presided, Simon Fogarty acting as secretary pro tem.

The most outstanding chapter delegates were Dave Hardy and Chester Prouty, of California. Of twenty-one formal motions made and carried, Hardy is credited with thirteen.

On motion by Hardy, a law was passed providing "that before a chapter be taken in it must have at least two initiated members of the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity among the applicants. If there be none, the Extension Committee shall see that two of the applicants be initiated at the most convenient place."

Authorization was granted to Simon Fogarty to publish a catalogue.

Messrs. Wright, Kay and Company were reappointed the official jewelers.

It was ruled, on motion by Hardy, "that a uniform pin be used by all the chapters"; that undergraduates be furnished with either plain or pearl bordered pins, and no other kind; and that "the pin be used as a badge only," and not allowed on watch fobs, rings, or other jewelry. (This had been permissible theretofore.)

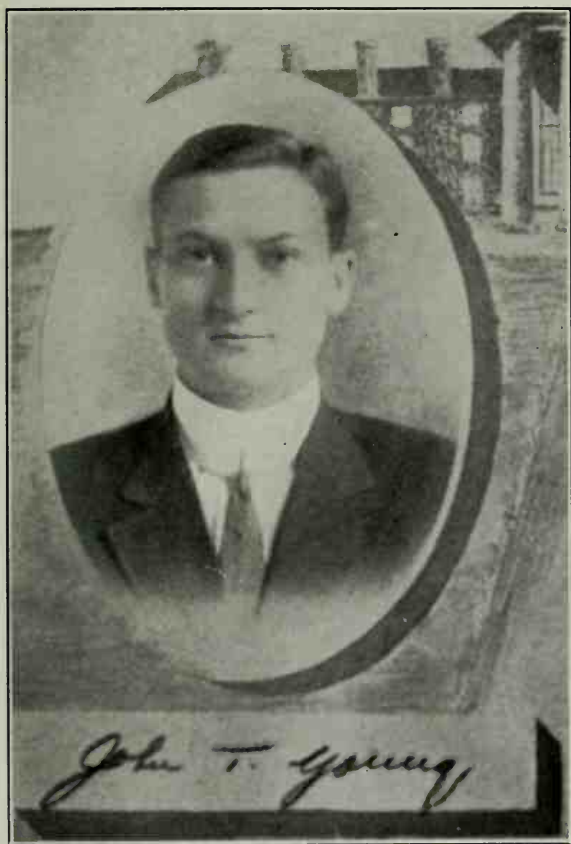

The Supreme Secretary was directed to issue uniform pledge blanks to "such chapters as wish them."

The standard form of membership certificate was specified as of parchment, 5 inches by 8 inches, bearing the fraternity arms, the member's name, date of initiation, college, and the seal of his chapter.—Prouty.

It was further enacted "that the Supreme Chapter appoint each year a Finance Committee, whose duty it shall be to look into all the running expenses of the Fraternity, and to set the supreme assessment for the following year on all the members of the Fraternity, both active and alumni. The supreme assessment shall cover the following expenses: (1) Expenses of Supreme Chapter and Supreme Council; (2) Four issues of the magazine yearly; (3) Expenses of one representative from each chapter to each convention."

"Before affiliating with a new chapter, a frater must produce his membership certificate."

"All chapters (shall) have seals the same as the fraternity seal, except that the name of the chapter (shall) be written across the face of the seal."—Hardy.

JOHN T. YOUNG
One of the first Pioneers, Founder of the Davidson Chapter

"A committee (shall) be appointed to draw up a (revised) ritual of initiation and report at the next convention." Committee: J. D. Hamer, chairman; W. H. Brewton; Simon Fogarty.

"In naming chapters both the name of the state and the Greek letter of the chapter (shall) be given."⁹—Hardy.

It was "the consensus of opinion of all members present that the invitation of California Gamma to hold the convention in 1915 in San Francisco be accepted."

One new officer was elected. Doubtless due to the difficulty of carrying on his duties at so great a distance, since the Supreme Treasurer was located in California, an assistant in the East was elected, W. H. Monckton, Jr., of South Carolina. Apparently Long resigned during the year, as Monckton is listed in January, 1913 as Supreme Treasurer.

The most serious concern had been felt at the convention over the financial condition of the fraternity, particularly as it affected The Star and Lamp. Early in the year the magazine had begun to experience acute financial difficulties. With a total membership of scarcely more than 150, and only a small proportion of that number paying subscribers, it will be seen what a burden had been assumed. There was much discussion of stopping publication. Enthusiasm prevailed over experience, however, and thinking to solve the problem the convention passed a resolution requiring every member, active or alumnus, to pay to the Supreme Chapter five dollars each year, which should include his subscription to The Star and Lamp.

California Gamma in the Far West had become restless through lack of close fraternal contact. Its members were in a great and thriving fraternity institution. Doubtless they expected much, and quickly, without fully realizing the difficulties under which the officers in the South labored. Their continued loyalty to and constructive work for the fraternity are far more gratifying than their impatience is surprising. They had to send their chapter delegates East and pay their expenses, which, for such a trip, was a considerable drain on their resources. When we read, for instance in August, 1912, that William Anderson '10, had "contributed a check for $100 to start the convention fund for 1913" we can appreciate the personal sacrifices necessary to carry on. The desire for a closer touch with sister chapters led to the invitation to the Supreme Chapter to hold its convention in 1915 in San Francisco, during the Panama-Pacific Exposition of that year. Rash though it was, it was decided to accept.

In further recognition of the status of California Gamma, an innovation appeared with The Star and Lamp for August, 1912, which was practically all contributed by that chapter, through a committee of which Dave Hardy was chairman. Photographs of individuals and of scenes of chapter and university life were shown; a history of the chapter was given; and in final evidence of the growing strength of this chapter, an announcement was made of the formation of the "Gamma of Pi Kappa Phi Association," which was the first specific organization of the alumni of one chapter to promote its local interests. Nearly all chapters have such associations now, primarily for the acquisition of chapter houses.

On September 1, 1912, appeared the first catalogue of the fraternity, compiled and edited by Simon Fogarty, Supreme Historian. It was a small booklet, nine inches by six inches in size, containing 24 pages. In addition to the lists of members, it contained much general information of interest, with a number of pen sketches by James Fogarty. It was timely, and carefully got up, but for some reason it did not sell and was a financial failure.

In fact, following the mandate of the convention that each member should pay $5 during the year, "a great silence fell." The magazine, being the source of greatest expense, was most affected. In the midst of the difficulty, Dillingham found that his business compelled him to resign as Journalist. No number appeared until January. The four ranking supreme officers constituted themselves a committee, with Mixson as chairman, and brought out numbers 4 and 5 of Volume I, in January and May, 1913, which tided things over till the convention. Copies of the January issue were sent to all members, whether subscribers or not, in an attempt to arouse more general interest.

The financial distress was reviewed at length. It was felt that a crisis had been reached and, while matters rocked along through the spring, the summons to the biennial convention in July was practically an emergency call.

Late in May, Theta chapter was installed at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. This installation proved to have been premature, but was doubtless hastened by anxiety to fill the long gap between the southern chapters and California. The local organization at the Conservatory was promising and plans had been formulated for a close affiliation between the Conservatory and the University of Cincinnati, so that it was anticipated that in time the chapter could properly be considered a part of the latter institution. But these plans were not carried out until some years later, due to effects of the World War, and when it was found that the standing of Pi Kappa Phi as a general college fraternity was being criticized on account of its having a chapter in a professional institution, the members of Theta voluntarily surrendered their charter (October 25, 1915).

Despite the seriousness of the situation in the fraternity, when the convention met at Wilmington, N.C., in July, 1913, apparently but three supreme officers were present: Carroll, Supreme Secretary; Monckton, Supreme Treasurer; and Langford, a member of the Supreme Council. Not as much was accomplished as had been anticipated. Some acts, however, were significant, particularly the general election of officers which this convention called for.

The committee on rituals appointed at the fifth convention reported by letter, submitting a ritual of initiation that had been prepared by Supreme Archon Harry Mixson. A committee was again appointed to revise this ritual for submission to the next convention.

An unusual motion was carried that the Supreme Archon appoint representatives for such chapters as had members present but no accredited delegates.

A membership certificate devised by Carroll was adopted. Fines were authorized for delinquent chapters. The Hoover and Smith Company of Philadelphia were made official jewelers on an equal basis with Wright, Kay and Co.

The chapter representatives were formed into a committee of the whole to determine the amount of the annual assessment on active chapter members, "it having been decided not to try to assess the inactive members again, but to try to reach them through the magazine, and to establish an alumni fund to which they would be invited to contribute." The yearly assessment was increased from $5 to $7.50.

An amendment to the constitution was passed (on motion by E. R. W. Gunn) providing for the office of Supreme Counsellor, as it was felt that the increasing responsibilities of the fraternity justified the designation of a legal adviser. John H. Hydrick, of Orangeburg, S.C., was elected to that position.

The record set by Hardy at the fifth convention was almost equalled by Gunn at this one. Out of fourteen motions carried, Gunn is credited with ten. In the ensuing election he became Supreme Secretary. All officers were elected by unanimous vote. John D. Carroll became Supreme Archon and Dave Hardy, of California, Supreme Deputy Archon. Resolutions of thanks were adopted in recognition of the long years of useful service to the fraternity by the retiring Supreme Archon, L. Harry Mixson. John D. Hamer was elected editor of The Star and Lamp, to succeed Dillingham, with authority to appoint a business manager. He promptly named Herbert Langford.

For the first time the administration was located outside of Charleston. Other chapters were now old enough to have alumni of prominence and experience to assume places in the active leadership of the fraternity. It was a significant moment when the handiwork of the founders, who had fostered and guided the fraternity for nine years, was turned over to successors from other chapters for preservation and perfecting. During that time nine chapters had been chartered and the membership had grown to 300. A very small beginning, it seems, when we reflect that more than that number are now added to our rolls each year. But then the fraternity had to make a name for itself; now it is nationally known. Our reputation is our whole stock in trade, and whether it is good or bad is dependent upon many intangible factors that do not trouble non-social organizations. The bare chronicle of facts cannot include the anxious hours spent by our founders and their co-workers, the labors undertaken, nor the keen delight and satisfaction they experienced as each obstacle was overcome. In the present comparatively efficient administration and co-operation of fraternities, one with another, it is perhaps difficult to conceive the haze of doubt and lack of knowledge which then confronted their every move. In the light of our present scientific surveys of educational institutions, improved administrative methods, and fully equipped central office, many first steps appear as plunges into darkness. They were, indeed, because there was no central office; fraternities were not as generous in their interchange of information as they have since become; and until 1923 there was no complete published tabulation of colleges and universities to furnish the information which fraternities needed. Baird's Manual of College Fraternities has always furnished limited information regarding the fraternities at the various institutions, but nothing regarding the colleges themselves upon which to build a permanent policy of extension. These early leaders had to feel their way, and many times to retrace their steps; but the vision they had was as "a lamp unto their feet" for their work has endured. Mixson was handicapped by ill health during the greater part of his administration as Supreme Archon, but was still able to visit the chapters frequently and to provide personal contact with supreme officers-which was particularly valuable at that time. The tendency generally among the members to visit chapters and each other whenever possible was marked and a great deal of good spirit was engendered in this way.

EXTENSION AND STABILIZATION

1913-1916

THE new administration set to work with enthusiasm. Its chief task was to strengthen morale among the chapters and alumni and to bring both into closer touch with the supreme government. Especial attention was given, therefore, to the organization of alumni groups and the improvement of the magazine. On September 16, 1913, a petition for the establishment of an alumni chapter, signed by D. G. Maxwell, Secretary, was received from the alumni members of the fraternity living in Columbia, S.C. This was the first formal step to effect the organization of an alumni chapter; but the Columbia men were inspired to action by Carroll, who had on September 9 received a letter from John T. Young (founder of the Davidson chapter) inquiring as to the procedure for securing an alumni charter for Clinton, S.C. Those present at the first meeting of the Columbia Alumni Chapter were: John D. Carroll, W. H. Monckton, Jr., John D. Hamer, Herbert Langford, I. N. Edwards, R. E. Monckton, C. E. Byrd, D. G. Maxwell. The officers were Monckton, President; Carroll, Vice-President; Maxwell, Secretary; Byrd, Treasurer.

The founders of the Clinton Alumni Chapter, which applied for a charter shortly afterward, were John T. Young, J. H. Phinny, and Cyrus Bailey.

It is doubtful whether formal charters were issued to either of these groups, but their status was generally recognized in the fraternity.

The Columbia Alumni Chapter established itself in the Union National Bank Building (Room 401), adjoining Carroll's business office. The chapter at the University of South Carolina donated the furniture and the national fraternity agreed to share the rent if the quarters were made general headquarters for the magazine and the officers as well as the alumni chapter. This arrangement lasted for some time, and set up, in effect, the first central office of the fraternity.

The first issue of The Star and Lamp in the fall showed great improvement. Hamer had selected able associates in the editorial work, and the contributions of Newton Edwards and R. E. Moody are particularly noteworthy during the next two years. The scope of the magazine was enlarged. The October, 1913 issue contained 72 pages, the next over one hundred, and the average during Hamer's editorship was over eighty. Previous issues had contained less than thirty pages. A fine piece of fraternity fiction, "My Brother," by Julian C. Hyer, Wofford '13, featured the December, 1913 number.

To make possible this increased expense, Carroll went after advertisements for the magazine, which practice had not been adopted previously. Four or five pages of advertising appeared regularly thereafter.

The magazine was put to more practical use as an "instrument of policy." Opposition to sub rosa chapters continued to develop. The October, 1913 issue carried the following:

"Every man of our fraternity knows that our largest trouble is finance. . . . The root of all our trouble is the sub rosa chapter. . . . There is no stimulus in the sub rosa chapter to keep up with other fraternities. There is no rivalry between fraternities, and a member of a sub rosa is satisfied to go along in his dream of contentment. . . . Some of the best men we have are members of sub rosa chapters, but still I believe it is the best policy never to install another chapter unless open."

JOHN DELORME CARROLL
Fifth Supreme Archon of the Fraternity

The truth of this was illustrated in the next issue by the chapter letter from Furman, which stated that it was "extremely difficult to do anything because, if caught, we face immediate expulsion from the school."

The fraternity felt keenly the need of extension, but it was equally determined, as Newton Edwards wrote, that "while we want more chapters and more men in the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity, we do not propose to compromise one whit our fraternity ideals in order to get them. The bars must not be let down, but the standard of efficiency raised. Every club or local that knocks at our door must, in biblical terms, have on wedding garments. Our growth must not only be extensive but intensive as well. . . . We have not constulted the Maid of Delphi, but we have a feeling, which, like the Ghost of Banquo, is ever before us and will not down at our bidding, that the coming year will see Pi Kappa Phi grow as it has never grown before."

In a letter to Gunn, Carroll outlined his policy:

"I should be very glad to see the number of chapters doubled before this administration goes out of office, and a thorough system established for the running of the Fraternity—something that doesn't exist at present. Too, I should like to see the magazine made THE thing, and through it create anew in the alumni the zeal which once thrilled them. Do all we can to-day, letting to-morrow take care of itself, for before we realize it, our term of office shall have come to an end."

He applied for membership for Pi Kappa Phi in the Interfraternity Conference (authorized in 1911) and the fraternity was first represented at the session of 1913, by Chas. K. Dillingham, former editor of The Star and Lamp.

The magazine discovered a number of contributors of verse as well as of fiction and editorials. In December, 1913, appeared the following hymn by H. Ray Staater, of the Cincinnati chapter:

PI KAPPA PHI

Pi Kappa Phi,
Thine altar fires are burning
Within our hearts, and turning
Our faces unto thee.
Thy potent power imbuing
Our bonds and love renewing,
Our hearts through thee communing
In blest felicity.

Pi Kappa Phi,
Thy star doth lead us ever,
Naught can our love dis sever,
Our trust is firm in thee.
Thy pinions o'er us hover
While hand in hand with brother,
We here at last discover,
Love lives eternally.

Very few illustrations were used, but in editorial content the five numbers got out under Hamer's editorship have scarcely been equalled since. It is a pity that less than three per cent of the present members have ever seen them. A good deal of exchange material was used, but with careful selection and proper correlation to the policies of the fraternity.

On March 15, 1914, the editors ventured to prophecy that "the year 1924 will find us a fraternity of 2,500 members with a chapter list of twenty-five." That was bold, for a fraternity of 376 members and eight chapters. But on March 15, 1924—ten years later—the fraternity had 2,476 members and twenty-six active chapters! A striking coincidence.

The mailing of the magazine had been a source of inconvenience and extra expense, as, due to the irregular dates of publication, it was not accepted as second-class matter. Through the persistent efforts of Carroll, this privilege was finally secured, effective with the issue of August 1, 1914.

Acknowledgment should be made here of the encouragement and helpful advice received at this time from some of the great fraternity leaders with whom the officers had been in touch. In particular, Mr. George Banta, first president of the General Council of Phi Delta Theta, who wrote to Gunn in 1914:

"I thank you for your cordial expression of sentiment in relation with my desire to perhaps be of some assistance to Pi Kappa Phi. I cannot forget that when I joined my fraternity forty years ago it was then only fourteen years old and a weak affair struggling to make its place among the older fraternities of that day. I strongly believe we have not enough fraternities. I was so pleased with Mr. Carroll and Mr. Hamer when I met them in Columbia that I feel sure a fraternity which has men of that class for officers has a future before it."

In July, 1914, the Supreme Chapter met again at the Isle of Palms, near Charleston, South Carolina. One chapter had been added during the year, but that an important one, Iota at Georgia Tech. Sam A. Cook was the "moving spirit," and the chapter resulted from his talks with Gunn and Cecil Carlisle, of Emory.

It was reported that petitions had been received from Central, Tulane, and the University of Tennessee. The first two had proved premature, and the last, which had been granted by the Supreme Council, died because permission from the university to receive the charter was denied the petitioners on the ground that Pi Kappa Phi was "too young"! Gunn made a special trip to Knoxville in an effort to secure a more impartial view of the matter, but was unsuccessful. Robert L. Peters, Jr., of Davidson, had organized the petitioners. Fortunate it is for fraternities that youth has not always been an obstacle.

Announcement was made at the convention of the withdrawal of the charter of the Charleston chapter for delinquency in the payment of dues, which action by the Supreme Archon was confirmed by the Supreme Chapter.¹ In addition, formal action was taken withdrawing charters from the Presbyterian, Wofford, and South Carolina chapters, as all of these had been out of operation for some time on account of renewed enforcement of anti-fraternity regulations. There had been a student uprising at Wofford during 1912-13. Zeta Chapter had managed to maintain its standing and avoid serious difficulty; but in accord with the growing sentiment that sub rosa chapters were harmful to the fraternity, even among those who had themselves been members of such chapters, the supreme officers prepared to take a definite stand against them.

"The first legislation for the coming year was in the matter of finance, the most important. Brother L. Harry Mixson moved, after some consideration of the editing and expense of publishing The Star and Lamp, that a committee composed of the Supreme Archon, the editor in chief, and the business manager of the magazine, assume the responsibility of awarding the contract for the publication of the magazine as they thought best, which motion was carried."

There was again a large deficit from publication expense, notwithstanding greater revenue. Another increase in the yearly per capita dues was made, "to the effect that the assessment for the year 1914-15 for each active member be $10, payable one-half on October 15, the balance February 15 following." This was necessitated by the budgeted expense of $1,350, of which $500 was for the magazine and the balance for visitation and incidentals.

A regulation was adopted (on motion by E. B. Boyle) providing "that all active chapters be required to obtain the payment by each pledge of his initiation fee prior to his being initiated, and that no candidate be admitted without having first paid his initiation fee in full."

Amendments to the supreme by-laws were enacted empowering the Supreme Archon to levy fines upon chapters for failure to remit dues; for not submitting the required reports; or for not having representatives at a meeting of the Supreme Chapter.

Among other enactments, "the chapter by-laws of the subordinate chapters were amended by the addition of a clause which provided that an active member shall be suspended by the chapter to which he belongs upon his failure for three consecutive months to pay his dues in full."

"L. Harry Mixson presented to the Supreme Chapter the Ritual of Initiation which he, as chairman of the committee which was appointed last year to draw up this document, had prepared." On motion by Hamer, the ritual was adopted as submitted and the committee discharged.

Hamer also proposed, and the convention adopted, the following pledge for neophytes, which remains unchanged:

Pledge

TO THE.....CHAPTER191....

Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity

Name of College or University

Believing in the principles and ideals of the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity, I hereby voluntarily pledge myself thereto, and in so doing I agree to obey and uphold the laws and customs of the Fraternity as they now exist or may hereafter be enacted: provided they do not conflict with my obligations to my family, my country, or my religion. I believe in a Supreme Being, and in the doctrines of the Christian Religion. I am a bona fide student of the above named institution. I am not a member of any other general college fraternity, and I hereby pledge myself not to join any other. This not to be construed to mean professional or honorary fraternities.

PLEDGED BY

It was intended that each pledge should be signed in duplicate, one being kept in a permanent file by the chapter, the other to be sent to the Supreme Historian. A standard pledge pin was also adopted.

Similar detailed matters considered were: a nickname for the fraternity; a whistle call; a record book for each chapter, for individuals' names, honors, etc.; a recognition pin. "A committee was appointed to look into the advisability of dividing the fraternity into districts and having yearly conclaves and biennial conventions."

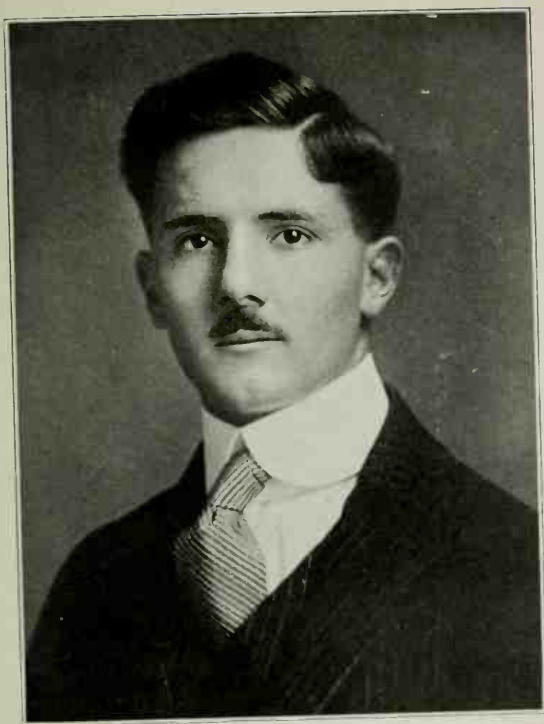

"The Supreme Counsellor, in conjunction with the Supreme Council," was authorized to prepare an 'interpretation' of the constitution. The Supreme Chapter was "given authority to publish whenever they see fit a secret magazine to be called The Fokromix."—Hamer.

The constitution was amended to require but one representative from each subordinate chapter at each Supreme Chapter Convention.

All of this between "dips in the surf" during the day or dances and banquets in the evening!

No changes of officers occurred at the convention, but in the fall Harold Mouzon, of Charleston, succeeded Simon Fogarty as Supreme Historian. The latter had been very ill with typhoid fever during the summer and found it necessary to resign.

The founding of Kappa Chapter at Chapel Hill in November is another notable instance of the work of a pioneer of Pi Kappa Phi. On February 14, 1914, the Georgia Tech chapter had initiated Manuel Gonzales ("Chick") Quevedo, of Union de Reyes, Cuba. The following fall this "dashing, magnetic, generous" brother transferred to North Carolina, where his enthusiasm at once manifested itself as it had at Georgia Tech, and on November 14 there took place the installation of the second chapter of the fraternity in North Carolina. He did not stop there, and his further efforts soon led to a chapter at Duke (then Trinity College). Still later, he was at the University of Virginia, but decided there was not, at the time, a suitable opportunity for Pi Kappa Phi at that institution.

During the recess between conventions, there was usually at least one meeting of the Supreme Council. Such a conference was held during the Christmas holidays of 1915. The chief result probably was the complete edition of the constitution and laws which followed under date of January 12, including the amendments of the last three conventions. This draft shows that the laws had developed extensively but far from specifically. Its most outstanding feature, perhaps, is the definition of the functions of the standing committees on by-laws, finance, credentials extension, chapters, and rituals, which had many duties since wholly assumed by the Supreme Council. These powers were purely for investigation and report on petitions, chapter grievances, changes in rituals or laws, and were doubtless assigned both from a desire to give a wider representation in the affairs of the fraternity and to solve quickly the many problems which pressed more and more for attention.

The Council had also to consider the status of The Star and Lamp, as it was again in difficulties, having ceased publication with the November, 1914 issue. The magazine continually serves as a guide to the general condition of the fraternity. It had been too much of a burden in the beginning for so young an organization, but having started, its constant ups and downs reflect better than any other record the uphill struggle which was waged during these years. The outlook became more and more discouraging as the time approached for the 1915 convention, which it had been planned to hold in California. Two more chapters had been added by June, but the general spirit was low. The Mother

Chapter at Charleston had been inactive during the year. It was decided that it would be impossible to have the convention in California, but just when this decision was reached is not known. The chapters themselves were feeling more keenly the effects of competition from other national fraternities. This increased every year as new fraternities came in and the old ones strengthened their positions; for more fraternities have been founded since 1904 than were born in the preceding hundred years. Because of the geographic location of a majority of our chapters, and to some extent due to oversight in not furnishing complete data, the fraternity was listed in Baird's Manual in the second division, consisting of fraternities confined to particular sections. This was later corrected but resulted in wrong impressions of Pi Kappa Phi at the time on account of the general vogue which "Baird's" had attained as the "fraternity bible."

At this critical point occurred one of the most gratifying and yet most curious instances of devotion to the fraternity on record. When Sigma Chapter was installed at the University of South Carolina in 1910, the real founder of the local group was not initiated, as he had left school to return to his home in Indiana. This was Wade Smith Bolt. There being no chapter of Pi Kappa Phi in the Midwest at the time, no opportunity appeared for his initiation, but he kept in close touch with the fraternity, and occasionally contributed to the magazine. When he heard that the publication of The Star and Lamp had been discontinued, he at once proposed to John Hamer, the editor, to print an issue of 300 copies, without charge, and did so, bringing out a special number of 32 pages, in June, 1915, which did much to arouse interest in the forthcoming convention and to bring the "news" in the fraternity up to date. Striking loyalty to a fraternity of which he was not a member! But he had always been a "Pi Kapp" at heart, as he is now in fact.

It had been decided to hold the meeting in Atlanta. In the special number of The Star and Lamp edited by Hamer and Bolt, it was stated plainly "When the Grand Chapter assembles in convention, the life or death of the fraternity will be determined. . . . The crisis of our existence is at hand." Supreme Archon Carroll wrote innumerable personal letters in an effort to arouse the members to attend.

When the convention met it proceeded at once to tackle the numerous problems before it. Its first official act was to vote a letter of thanks to Wade Bolt for his services in printing the extra issue of The Star and Lamp and to order that he be reimbursed to the extent of his expenditures therefor.

An interesting development was the report of E. R. W. Gunn, Supreme Secretary, of certain correspondence which had passed between himself and the Lambda Chi Alpha and Sigma Pi fraternities, relative to the absorption of Pi Kappa Phi.² L. Harry Mixson moved that the report be received as information, and there reference to it in the convention minutes ends. As a matter of fact, this correspondence had taken place in the spring of 1914, but was not reported to the extra-session convention of that year, doubtless because of Gunn's absence due to injury. There had also been some correspondence with Tau Kappa Epsilon. All of these fraternities desired extension in the South, where Pi Kappa Phi was strongest; but each proposed consolidation under its own name, which Pi Kappa Phi would not consider. In the cases of Tau Kappa Epsilon and Sigma Pi reciprocal offers were made; but, as each fraternity was attached to its name and customs, as Pi Kappa Phi was, nothing came of it.

A great number of detailed matters were taken up by the convention. For the first and last time it was suggested that the style of the pin be changed. The committee reported adversely and the idea was dropped.

Plans for a general "Home Coming Week" in Charleston caused considerable discussion. L. Harry Mixson was chairman of the committee in charge.

Norman H. Blicht, Jr., Charleston '17, made a statement concerning Alpha Chapter, relating the history of the chapter up to the time of the loss of its charter. Upon motion by Hydrick, the chapter was reinstated.

The Hoover and Smith Company of Philadelphia was designated as sole official jewelers, and Carroll and Mixson were empowered to draw a contract to include a ten per cent royalty for the fraternity.

In his report Carroll recommended that future meetings of the Supreme Chapter be held during the Christmas holidays, as it was felt that more undergraduates would be able to attend at that time. In view of the increased number of chapters and members, it was also decided that future conventions should be held biennially. Accordingly, the ninth convention was set for December, 1916, in Savannah, Georgia.

An amendment to the constitution was made to allow each chapter "one representative for each four active members." The second series of "Grand" titles, adopted in 1911, was eliminated and the original Greek titles were ordered out again for both public and private use. Personal identification cards were authorized.

Much discussion was entailed by a motion that no resignations from the fraternity be allowed. Mixson stated that the constitution had no machinery for granting resignations. The motion passed.

Carroll also recommended that each chapter submit a written report to each convention, relating its achievements, grievances and general status; that the coat of arms be corrected to the rules of heraldry and the design copyrighted;

and that provision be made to resume publication of The Star and Lamp. He proposed a number of minor changes in the constitution and laws. The committee appointed at the last convention had not reported on a recognition pin, and Carroll recommended that this pin consist of a gold student's lamp, in outline, with a small star, of white enamel, raised on the center of the bowl of the lamp.

Still the chief problem was finance. The magazine had been, all along, a burden out of proportion to the fraternity's income, invaluable as it was in building a national spirit into the fraternity. Too, financial conditions generally had become unfavorable. Carroll's report stated that the fraternity "did well to collect $400 this year as compared with $500 last year (considering) the effects of the stringency which has gripped the country for the past twelve months." The World War was taking its toll of disruption in American business. Royalties on sales of insignia, which now form a substantial part of the revenue, had brought little if anything, to the treasury. In addition, payments from the chapters were slow and irregular. Generous in their individual responses to their chapters' needs, members failed to realize the urgent necessity of regular financial support for the work of the supreme officers. The fraternity had grown beyond a small group, wherein each did all he could, and each knew that he could depend upon the others to do likewise. Similarly, each chapter struggled. As the fraternity grew, the close personal relation between supreme officers and chapters became harder to maintain, and so, without the tradition of a firm financial policy, delays were frequent and embarrassment to the supreme officers the result. Financial weakness was for years the fraternity's greatest handicap.

Each convention prior to 1915 had raised the annual assessment on undergraduates, without making much progress toward reducing the total of uncollected accounts. Now the convention went to the other extreme and reduced the yearly per capita assessment to $4, payable monthly, from September to April. All past obligations to the Supreme Chapter were cancelled. The charter fee was even reduced to twenty-five dollars. It was hoped that these acts would improve conditions and remove the incubus of debt from the chapters which had been discouraged thereby. A number of proposals were made designed to restrict expenditures and secure more supervision over finances in general. It was decided that the three ranking supreme officers should act as a finance committee.

The election of officers was again by unanimous vote. Perhaps the most important change was the election of Wade Bolt as editor in chief of The Star and Lamp. A new office of Business Manager of the magazine was created. Previously the business of the magazine had been handled by the Supreme Treasurer or the editor. H. McCord Shaver, who had been serving as exchange editor, was elected, but resigned before the next issue came out in November.

This was the first number under Bolt's official editorship. Practically the same staff had been continued. Strangely enough, there was no reference to the Atlanta convention; but aside from that, the contents were varied and interesting. It was reported that the house of the Georgia Tech chapter had burned during the summer.

In accord with the action of the convention, the Mother Chapter at Charleston was revived in October (1915) with five old members as a nucleus. On the twenty-second two initiates were added to the group, and the chapter has functioned uninterruptedly since. During September a petition was received from Bowdoin College, but was denied when it was found that the local desired to operate sub rosa.

The year was further marked by the chartering of Nu Chapter at Nebraska. On his return from the installation of the Nebraska chapter, Carroll visited Wade Bolt in Indiana. Although he had been elected Eminent Supreme Journalist, Bolt was still not really a member. There, near his home, he was initiated personally by the Supreme Archon, in October, 1915. Ten years later, when the Supreme Chapter met in Chicago, as a part of the model initiation and as a mark of especial recognition, Wade Bolt was given the full initiation ceremony before the convention.

On this trip also the Supreme Archon visited the University of Cincinnati and the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, and arranged with Theta Chapter for the surrender of its charter.

In the meantime, Gunn's report to the convention regarding affiliation of Pi Kappa Phi with other fraternities had got around, and Carroll found it necessary to reassure a number of members. To Dillingham, he wrote:

"I may as well be perfectly frank with you and say that when Pi Kappa Phi affiliates with ANY fraternity it will be only after I have exhausted all the breath there is in me and used up my last bit of energy! I feel that we have everything now that any other organization could offer us, and I do not see what we could hope to gain by giving ourselves over to some organization now, now after we have been struggling for ten years, and are only beginning to see the results of our efforts, in fact, only beginning to get our efforts sufficiently well organized to show results! No! Never, will we go into another fraternity if I have anything to say about it! I am expecting this to be THE BANNER YEAR in the existence of the order!

I might state right here that I have just returned from Lincoln, Neb., where I had the pleasure of installing one of the best chapters the fraternity has or has had! One of the finest bunch of fellows I ever knew, and one that is sure to be heard from in the near future!"

An incident of note during the year was a visit, in September, to the California chapter by Andrew Kroeg, during the Exposition in San Francisco.

In January, 1916, the Wofford chapter was restored following the readmission of fraternities by the Wofford faculty. Other matters went along in routine fashion. The magazine was slow to resume regular appearance until J. Lawton Ellis, Georgia Tech '17, took charge as Business Manager, in March, 1916. Indications of extension continued, but the only definite accomplishment was the institution, in May, of Xi Chapter at Roanoke College. Archibald S. McNeil, of the Davidson chapter, organized a group of petitioners at the University of Texas, but nothing came of it. A petition from Eastern College in Virginia had received serious consideration but was finally rejected due to opposition from Pelzer Wagener, of Roanoke, and doubt on the part of several officers as to the standing of the institution. It was well that this affair turned out as it did, for the school was hardly a college at all, its principal interscholastic relations being with the preparatory schools of the Shenandoah Valley. No doubt this experience led to closer investigation of future petitions, and was a considerable step toward the sound policy of extension, in relation to college standards, which the fraternity now holds.

Additional stress was also laid upon fraternity scholarship. The early magazines had urged good scholarship and gentlemanly conduct, but that was all they could do. In November, 1916, the first trophy for high scholarship among the chapters was announced—a loving cup offered by the Supreme Archon, John D. Carroll. The cup was never claimed, as the entry of the United States into the World War caused the collection of scholarship statistics to be forgotten. It is an instance of the many plans which had to be postponed during the next three years. "Preparedness" had become the word of the hour, as the fraternity got ready for the Supreme Chapter meeting in Savannah.

The Savannah Convention was marked by a sincere and earnest approach to business. The general status of the fraternity was much improved over what it had been at the time of the Atlanta meeting of 1915. The only chapter which did not have a representative in Savannah was Xi at Roanoke.

The chapter naively explained that "owing to a depleted treasury" they had had to rely upon the hope of Pelzer Wagener, their founder and faculty adviser, being in Savannah to represent them for at least a part of the time, but "as that gentleman was married last summer and Christmas time offered the first opportunity to take his treasure to his home folks (in Charleston), it occasioned little surprise when he told of his failure to find time to run over to the Convention."

The California chapter was represented by Roy J. Heffner, '16, a past archon of the chapter and later Supreme Archon of the fraternity, who was at that time living in Chicago. Supreme Secretary Gunn was absent due to illness, and Wade Bolt, Supreme Editor, was appointed secretary pro tem. Telegrams were read from Gunn and from Founder Harry Mixson expressing regret at their inability to attend.

The reports of the supreme officers, which furnish the most illuminating accounts for each biennium, have not been found; in fact, prior to 1919, the only convention records accompanied by the report of the Supreme Archon are those for the Atlanta meeting of 1915.

After the assignment of special business to committees, sundry matters were taken up.

The recognition button which had been recommended in 1915 was being used, but unofficially, and the Supreme Chapter now adopted it (on motion by Henry Harper) as the official design.

A wise provision was adopted (on motion by J. Cozby Byrd) whereby "the traveling expenses of the representative from each chapter, together with the expenses of the Supreme Archon, Supreme Secretary, Supreme Treasurer, and Supreme Editor should be prorated to each chapter and an assessment be placed upon the individual members of each chapter, or the chapter as a whole be responsible for the same, in order that the Convention might not be a burden upon the Far West chapters when held in the East, and vice versa." Theretofore, representation had depended upon the uncertain method of each chapter paying the expenses of its delegate, and each officer his own. The regular Supreme Chapter assessment upon the subordinate chapters remained the same. The charter fee was increased to fifty dollars.

Changes in the ritual still occupied a good deal of time, and the convention resolved itself into a committee of the whole for their special discussion. The provision of the last convention that each chapter should have one representative for each four men was found impracticable, and was amended to allow "each delegate to vote on the strength of his chapter, by proxy, one vote for each four men."

The power to grant charters to subordinate chapters, which had rested entirely in the hands of the Supreme Council (except during actual sessions of the Supreme Chapter), was extended to include the chapters which such grants would most affect, and it was provided that "the favorable report of the three nearest chapters" upon the petitioning organization be obtained in each case. The requirement that each group of petitioners include two members of Pi Kappa Phi was removed.

The "matter of the colors of the coat of arms, the significance of the symbols, and the further explanations of the design was placed with the Supreme Council, to be reported at an early date to the officers and chapters."—Kroeg.

The increasing amount of detail involved in the administration of the fraternity, and the desire to fix more definitely responsibility with the officers led to the authorization of a nominal salary for the Supreme Secretary (on motion by Heffner) of ten dollars per month for the eight months of active work in each college year. Under this provision, the collection of dues was also placed in the office of the Supreme Secretary, to be remitted by him periodically to the Supreme Treasurer. The life subscription rate to The Star and Lamp was raised from $20 to $25 ; the annual subscription rate was reduced from $2 to $1.50.

Supreme Editor Bolt announced the offer of a cup to the chapter writing the best chapter letter in the year 1917, under the same conditions as those prescribed for the scholarship cup. Like the latter, this was forgotten during the War.

The requirement that initiation fees should be paid prior to admission to the fraternity was removed. An examination upon the principles, laws, and history of the fraternity was prescribed for each initiate. It was provided that before the installation of any new chapter all active subordinate chapters should be notified. Tentative specifications for standard initiation regalia were adopted, and the Supreme Council was instructed to submit suggestions for more distinctive and symbolic costumes. "Rough stuff" in the rituals was discouraged. Approval of all orders for official badges was placed in the hands of the Supreme Treasurer, and all orders for the same were to be handled by him. Special emphasis was laid upon the necessity of issuing membership certificates to all members, and the Supreme Historian was instructed to secure lists from the chapters for the purpose, and to issue also "Good Standing" cards to those entitled to them.

The creation of an advisory board (on motion by Heffner) was authorized, to consist of three past supreme officers. The contract with the Hoover and Smith Company as official jewelers was annulled, and a committee appointed to select three official jewelers. Authorization was given the Supreme Archon to print the revised constitution and supreme laws, at the earliest possible date following the convention, to be supplied to the chapters and to alumni at a cost not to exceed ten cents a copy. Each new member was to be supplied with a copy at the time of initiation. A catalogue of members was authorized. The number of questions which arose concerning matters which were already cared for by existing legislation clearly showed the need of more general information on the affairs of the fraternity.

On request of the Georgia Tech chapter the convention expelled Ramon W. Stribling from the fraternity, "for conduct and behavior unbecoming and unworthy of a Pi Kappa Phi." This was the first expulsion in the twelve years of the fraternity.

The next biennial convention was set for December 27-29, 1918, at Charlotte, N.C. This was due primarily to the presence of Henry Harper. Again a number of new voices had been heard. Henry Harper, of North Carolina, R. C. Wiggins, of Trinity, Heffner, of California, Byrd, of Georgia Tech, George Brunson, of Wofford, had all figured prominently in the sessions of the convention. In fact, in the actual business done, as reflected in the minutes, Andrew Kroeg seems to have taken the principal part among the older members, and in the election which concluded the meeting, John Carroll, Supreme Archon, and Wade Bolt, Supreme Editor, were the only "old men" who were continued in office. Roy Heffner became Supreme Deputy Archon, and thus began his career of seven years as one of the most constructive executives the fraternity has had.

The high point in the harmony which distinguished this meeting was, of course, the banquet, which was held on the second evening. Andrew Kroeg was toastmaster. It was his last convention. The speakers were Heffner, of California; Leland Landers, of Nebraska; Wade Bolt, the "Hoosier" from South Carolina; and John D. Carroll, South Carolina '10, reelected Supreme Archon.

IV

THE FRATERNITY AND THE WORLD WAR

1917-1919

S those who attended the Savannah Convention returned to their homes, lighthearted and filled with enthusiasm for the accomplishment of their plans for Pi Kappa Phi, they little dreamed of the test which the fraternity must face during the next three years. No one could foresee how those plans would be swept aside by the greater demands of country.

On April 6, 1917, the United States declared war. The shock to the organization of the fraternity caused by this event was tremendous. Leaders, both in national offices and in the chapters, began to enter the service almost immediately. In many respects the war was more disastrous to Pi Kappa Phi than to older and larger fraternities. The fraternity was not old enough to have a large reserve of experienced heads to take over the direction of affairs. It had no central office as we know it now; its work was done by officers in "spare time." After a few months of the war, there was no spare time.

Communication within the fraternity was irregular and uncertain. For two years but one number of The Star and Lamp appeared. At the outbreak of the war Bolt went into the Navy. George Brunson, of Wofford, became acting editor and brought out an issue in September, 1917. Then he, too, went into the Navy. The next appearance was not till March, 1919. The fraternity was completely out of touch with itself. C'est la guerre.

Exclusive of the three supreme councilmen, ten officers had been elected by the Savannah Convention. During the course of the war nine of these were called into active service; eight in the Army and one in the Navy. Bobo Burnett, Supreme Historian, wrote John L. Henderson, Supreme Secretary, on May 4, 1917, regarding the issuance of membership certificates, closing with "I am at present on train en route to Columbia to qualify for the training camp of the Officers' Reserve Corps." He went to France with the famous Rainbow Division. His brother, J. J. Burnett, of Wofford, was appointed Acting Supreme Historian. Later he was in the Army. Heffner, Supreme Deputy Archon, was busy becoming a major in the Air Service; Boyd Oliver, Supreme Counsellor, a captain of artillery; Belk, Supreme Chaplain, a first lieutenant of the First Division. Many others entered the first three months' training camps, which opened May 14.

The service records of the fraternity have never been entirely completed, but the data available shows a most creditable proportion to the membership totals during 1917-18. There were members in every branch of the military and naval services. It is believed that California Gamma has the best record for both alumni and undergraduate members in active service. All but four members in 1917 enlisted, which necessitated closing the chapter house. But, with the aid of alumni, those left continued to function as a chapter. In fact, while a number of chapters were in the same situation, none had to cease operation entirely on account of the war. Chapters and alumni alike bought and campaigned for Liberty Bonds. The Emory chapter at one time mentions subscribing to six bonds; Nebraska had "$600 worth."

Two charters were granted: Alabama in April, 1917, and Oglethorpe in May, 1918. Both installations were conducted by undergraduate chapter officers from the Atlanta chapters, which had fostered the petitions. The Alabama installation was in charge of R. Gayle Nimocks of Georgia Tech, who, little more than a year later, a flight lieutenant, was killed flying in France.

A serious situation arose at Davidson in the spring of 1917, which resulted in the loss of the chapter. Dissension seems to have been brewing for some time. Debt added to the difficulties. On February 25, 1917, the chapter suspended "two brothers who had not seen the error of their ways." On March 3 the chapter was visited by the Supreme Archon, John D. Carroll, who, after hearing the case, declared the two men expelled. In the fall only one regular meeting of the chapter is recorded, on October 6. Meanwhile some of its members had joined the Army. The chapter was further weakened by the defection of some of those who were left. The outcome was that on November 8 the chapter officers surrendered the charter and property to the Supreme Council and Epsilon Chapter was dissolved. The loyal members, led by John A. Thames and James Woodrow Clark, made every effort to close the chapter's affairs honorably. Three exhibited such disloyal sentiments that on February 6, 1918, they were expelled from Pi Kappa Phi. The chapter had made a splendid record during the five years of its existence and, no doubt, in a less troubled period might still have recovered its strength.

The year 1918 brought even more disorganization than the previous one. Due to enlistments, few juniors and fewer seniors were left in the colleges. This made leadership within the chapters as uncertain as it had become nationally. Practically every supreme officer was in active military service. The Supreme Archon had been drafted as an official for the local board in his county under the Selective Service Act. In the fall he entered the Artillery. War work of every description occupied the attention of the country.

In the meantime the War Department had announced its plans for the Students' Army Training Corps, which made a training camp of every campus. Fraternities were directed to coöperate with the military authorities by disbanding, holding no meetings, and giving up their houses for barracks. Eager as all fraternities were to do their part, such drastic action threatened permanent injury to the fraternity system. Through the intercession of officials of the Interfraternity Conference, some modification of the plan was secured, and the final conditions which fraternities were to observe under the S.A.T.C. were defined as follows:

"The War Department, considering that fraternity activities are incompatible with military discipline in the very nature of things, feels that it is in the best interest of the Service that they be suspended in institutions where units of the Students' Army Training Corps have been established, for the period of the present emergency. By 'fraternity activities,' as above used, is meant the social side of fraternity life—the living of the members together in fraternity houses and the functions and meetings of a social or ceremonial nature.

Realizing, however, that some fraternity organization must be kept intact to insure the resumption of fraternity activities when the present emergency has passed, the War Department will interpose no objection to the holding of such meetings as are of a purely business character."

A typical indication of conditions in the chapters is this excerpt from a letter from the Alabama chapter:

"At the first meeting in September there were only six present. The next week our archon departed for the Naval Aviation Training Camp. We had to give up our house on account of the S.A.T.C., but rented rooms for meetings and rushing."

During the year the North Carolina chapter house burned.

The absence of some of the supreme officers in the service might not, from their titles, seem as paralyzing a development as it was unless it is recalled that as the Supreme Council was then constituted, each officer had a vote, and the titles, in some instances, were purely honorary. Cecil Carlisle, for instance, wrote from the A.E.F. to offer his resignation as Eminent Supreme Thuripanioktes, because he was a member of the Council. There was certainly nothing for that officer to do.

LIEUT. JOHN CANNON PAISLEY

One of the first members of the fraternity to die in the War. Awarded the Distinguished Service Cross "for extraordinary heroism in action in the Belleau Woods, France, June, 21, 1918."

Then came the Armistice. The S.A.T.C. was to be abandoned; but it was not until December that the students were discharged from their enlistments. The constant upsetting of every routine function was completed by the series of epidemics of influenza and meningitis which appeared throughout the country. Many colleges closed. It was not until 1919 that the country, and fraternities, were able to settle down to the problems of reconstruction.

The last member to die during the war was Lieut. John Rennie Blake, of the Emory chapter, reported to have been killed in the last five minutes of fighting on November 11, 1918.

As the national officers and older members began to return from service, the recuperative force of the fraternity made itself felt. In March, 1919, The Star and Lamp reappeared. The old problems of administration began to reassert themselves; they could no longer be put off on account of the war. Chapters complained lustily of failure to receive membership certificates. Everyone was so out of touch that it was not realized that one after another of those responsible for such things had been in service. Even Pelzer Wagener wrote, on behalf of the Roanoke chapter, to Kroeg (January 15, 1919) that the men there were much discouraged and that he feared a break unless something was done. Only that week the Acting Supreme Historian, who was responsible for the matter of certificates, returned from the Army. Despite the fine spirit with which the fraternity had gone through the war, the absolute inability of the officers, harassed by public and private duties, to keep in close touch with the chapters, was threatening disintegration after the strain of war activities was removed. Happily, the return of all officers by spring gradually brought things back to normalcy. Heffner, Supreme Deputy Archon, was the last, being discharged on June 16.

Lawton Ellis, Supreme Treasurer, was in Wisconsin and did considerable constructive work on extension of chapters in the Midwest. On May 3, a banquet at the Ansley Hotel in Atlanta signalized the formation of the Georgia District of Pi Kappa Phi, with James W. Setze, Jr., as president. This was the first district organization to be effected. A movement began there to have the convention, which had been postponed, held that summer. The Supreme Archon had a vote taken on the question of a summer convention or one during the Christmas holidays following. As Councilman at Large, Kroeg wrote from Charleston:

"I took occasion to canvass the situation as to the desirability of having a convention this summer, and found that, almost without dissent, the members of the chapter here are in favor of having such convention at some place outside of Charleston. The suggestion was made by several that the end of June would be desirable. Wherever and whenever it is held, I expect to be on hand."

The general sentiment, however, was in favor of holding the meeting during the Christmas holidays, especially as a large number of alumni and active members had not yet returned from the service.

The convention met, therefore, in December, 1919, in Charlotte, North Carolina. In many ways the meeting was a notable one. It marked a rebirth of energy, and the creation of fresher viewpoints. The war had taught the power of organization and had brought about a general reconsideration of values. The Supreme Archon had to report that "little of constructive achievement" had been accomplished since the last convention. "The great struggle was to hold intact that which we had." Yet even from its period of demoralization the fraternity had gained strength. The vigor which had gone into the war was now turned to building the fraternity. For the first time it found itself financially independent, due to almost total absence of publication and visitation expenses.

More than ever this convention reflected a will to do—a determination to work through the fraternity's problems. Many changes in legislation and procedure were proposed, and a considerable number of projected accomplishments "passed." Such involved matters as revision of the rituals, of the constitution and laws, of insignia, were ambitiously tackled by convention and committees, which later regretfully reported that the time was "insufficient to complete their work." With each convention since, it has been realized more and more that the convention can only consider the merits of finished work, or plan for the future; while matters requiring detailed study must be prepared beforehand, and the time saved for that fellowship which, after all, is the chief joy and reward of those who attend.

As was the case at Savannah, also, the convention proceeded to pass solemnly several motions upon matters which were already covered by legislation of previous conventions, illustrating again the need of more general knowledge of the fraternity's affairs. But the convention did a great amount of good. It sent back to the chapters a wave of enthusiasm which inaugurated ten years of progress and growth. It is related that the delegate from the Nebraska chapter had "come East" with very definite demands from his chapter for action (in particular, more chapters in the Midwest) or for affiliation with a larger fraternity. Since 1915 this chapter had been in very much the same condition of isolation as the California chapter. Amidst the enthusiastic fellowship of the convention, the delegate seems to have forgotten his instructions and returned filled with new zeal for Pi Kappa Phi. Nebraska remains one of the fraternity's strongest chapters.

The convention increased the undergraduate charter fee to $75, and the undergraduate dues to the Supreme Chapter, from $4 to $6 per year.

It was ordered that there should be, on the last day of each convention, a model exemplification of the ritual of initiation, the initiating team to be selected by the Supreme Archon and the members notified of their appointment at least three months before the convention.

A numbering system for badges was authorized. Plain badges were to be numbered consecutively and were to be issued only upon the order of the Supreme Secretary.¹ Various changes in insignia and paraphernalia were considered. Because of the heraldic technicalities involved, most of these were referred to J. Cozby Byrd, Georgia Tech '19, an architectural student, for further study. A motion by Byrd that the points of the ribbon scroll of the pin be cut off, in order that the design might be copyrighted, was passed.² The recognition pin designed by Carroll was replaced (on motion by Harper) by one displaying the coat of arms.

The most important enactment was the requirement (on motion by Louis Dawson, Georgia Tech '20) that all men initiated into the fraternity become life subscribers to The Star and Lamp at the time of initiation. The life subscription rate was reduced from $25 to $10, payable in installments of $2.50 per year.

The editor in chief of The Star and Lamp was directed to "issue a book containing information for neophytes"; a combined manual, history, and directory.³

The Supreme Treasurer was authorized to enter subscriptions for the fraternity to Banta's Greek Exchange for the supreme officers and for each subordinate chapter. The "Interfraternity Conference Accounting System" was adopted for the use of undergraduate chapters, with a view to standardizing accounts throughout the fraternity. A material indication of the desire of the fraternity to "take stock of itself" was the direction that each year an inventory of property be taken by supreme officers and subordinate chapters and sent to the Supreme Secretary.

¹ A member's chapter number, when prefixed by the name of the chapter, may now be used for this purpose, if desired.

² A design patent instead of a copyright was doubtless intended. A requirement for the former is that the design must not have been in use for more than two years, and the scroll was altered to meet this technicality. The points were reduced, but the protection sought was not effected. A design patent upon the ribbon scroll, the distinguishing feature of the badge, including the letters Π Κ Φ, was secured in 1927.

Accredited representatives of alumni chapters were granted votes in the Supreme Chapter. A charter fee of $10 and dues of $5 per year were established for alumni chapters.

The state designations for undergraduate chapter names were dropped. Another proposal "that the fraternity be organized into districts," with a "District Chief" in charge of each district, failed to carry. A motion to resume holding the convention annually likewise failed. "The Committee on Time and Place . . . suggested that the (next) convention be held in either Berkeley, California, or Birmingham, Alabama." Roy J. Heffner talked on behalf of Berkeley, while the attractions of Birmingham were extolled by H. F. Burchfield. The invitation to the convention from the California chapter to meet next in Berkeley was accepted with enthusiasm.

In his report, Supreme Archon Carroll recommended the appointment of an official who should give at least one-third of his time to the work of the fraternity, with the expectation that eventually a "full-time" officer would carry on the work. This recommendation was not adopted; but it was the initial impulse which resulted in the establishment five years later of a central office with an executive secretary in charge.

The principal change in officers was the election of Roy J. Heffner to succeed John D. Carroll as Supreme Archon.

The banquet on the second evening was one of the most colorful that has ever been held. Carroll was toastmaster. Speeches were numerous. "The Test," by Roy Heffner, was a short but appropriate and masterful tribute to the supreme sacrifice paid by the dead heroes of the World War. On behalf of the fraternity, C. P. Spruill, of North Carolina, presented to John Carroll a beautiful silver service, in appreciation of his years of labor as an officer of the fraternity. The gift was fitting, as announcement had been made of the marriage of Brother Carroll to take place the following February.

Amid the fellowship which featured this convention, the discouragements of past years were forgotten. With eager eyes the fraternity turned again to its work.

GROWTH OF NATIONAL CONSCIOUSNESS

THE years following the Charlotte Convention have been so filled with accomplishment that we can only attempt to give a perspective without close attention to detail.

In a letter written in 1919, in discussing his probable successor in office, Supreme Archon Carroll used these words: "The place needs a steady head, a prophetic vision, a firm will, and a quick, impartial mind." Heffner, elected Supreme Archon at Charlotte, proved to have these qualities. Experienced in the administration of college affairs, he proceeded to analyze scientifically the problems of the fraternity, and to make definite recommendations for their solution. For the first time, the matter of extension was made the subject of a formal survey and a map was prepared showing the location of all institutions which were considered eligible for chapters. A procedure for handling petitions, and for the general consideration of placing new chapters, was outlined in detail. The policy of the fraternity on extension was not changed, but supplemented and improved by more efficient methods. The long-standing problem of revising the rituals was reviewed at length. A questionnaire was submitted to the undergraduate chapters upon their individual practices in applying the ritualistic work. The replies were consolidated, differences noted, and a résumé of the whole circulated within the fraternity. To relieve the condition of disunion which had obtained during the War, a series of informal news letters to the chapters and officers was begun, which did much to restore confidence and bring the fraternity into closer touch with itself.

Due to their wide separation from one another, communication among the supreme officers was slow. The handicap of distance was further increased by Heffner's removal from California to Honolulu on educational work for the General Staff of the Army. But, as he described it, "in spare time, and with the assistance of a stenographer of Chinese-Hawaiian ancestry," he carried on.

During the spring of 1920, the Washington and Lee and North Carolina State chapters, which had been fostered by the previous administration, were installed.

Since the convention but one number of The Star and Lamp had appeared. Bolt, Supreme Editor, was handicapped by conflicting circumstances and had not received regular support from the chapters. In June he resigned.

Richard L. Young, North Carolina '18, was appointed to fill the vacancy. Additional funds were provided for the publication of the magazine, and its appearance and contents under Young's editorship showed improvement with the first number, which appeared in November, 1920.

The year witnessed a revival of interest in alumni chapters. Formal charters were issued to those at Roanoke, Virginia and San Francisco. The Charleston Alumni Chapter was reorganized, with William Fogarty as archon.

Following a study of ritualistic practices, Heffner issued, on November 21, 1920, a new edition of the ritual of initiation, in which were incorporated all previous revisions. He also investigated "rushing" customs among the chapters, and the treatment of pledges, discussing the conclusions reached from this survey in a special series of news letters. A result of these publications, and the principal one sought, no doubt, was to build the national spirit and to cause the chapters to think more about one another. On account of the reconstruction problems following the War, chapter conditions generally still needed a great deal of attention. The price of the War had to be paid also from the financial side. The Interfraternity Conference reported that fraternities were liable to a ten per cent war tax. Purchases of fraternity insignia also were subject to such war tax.¹

The last convention had provided that subscriptions to The Star and Lamp should be taken in the form of notes, payable at the rate of $2.50 per year. The fraternity realized that it must have a better magazine. During 1921, the Business Manager, J. Cozby Byrd, Georgia Tech '19, conducted an enthusiastic campaign for life subscriptions, and a number were secured. But the plan of taking notes was found to be unsatisfactory, and at the convention of 1921 it was abandoned.

On February 14, 1921, Supreme Archon Heffner announced that he would shortly return from Hawaii to the States and that he would spend the entire months of April and May in visiting all chapters of the fraternity and in meeting with the supreme officials, as well as those of the Interfraternity Conference. This was a momentous step. It was the first time such a tour of visitation had been attempted. It was sorely needed as some chapters had not seen a supreme officer since their installation.

The fraternity looked forward eagerly to the consummation of the inspection tour. The results are most readily indicated by the report of the Supreme Archon to the convention of 1921:

¹ Following the instructions of the Savannah Convention, The Star and Lamp for September, 1917, announced that the official jewelers were the Hoover and Smith Company and Burr, Patterson and Company; and that the official badge was made only by the latter. This arrangement was continued through the Charlotte Convention, but subsequently the agreement with Hoover and Smith was cancelled and Burr, Patterson and Company became the sole official jewelers. This relation has continued with mutual satisfaction ever since.

"The description in detail of the results of this inspection trip would be entirely too long for the intended scope of this report. In summary, however, it may be said that in almost every particular of organization, ceremony, and ritual there was a tremendous degree of divergence; in fact, a lamentable degree. This is true, however: everywhere there was eagerness to learn the proper way and willingness to make any changes which were desirable.

One of the most startling features disclosed, and one of the most gratifying as well, was the remarkable homogeneity of the fraternity. How it has come about that Pi Kapps in all of the chapters are so nearly alike cannot be easily explained, since we have been woefully behind in matters of coördination."

Enthusiastic meetings and dinners were held everywhere. At Charlotte, North Carolina, John D. Carroll, Supreme Counsellor, proposed the creation of a general endowment fund and a certain amount was subscribed at that time; but the idea was subsequently neglected.

Through the personal contacts afforded by this trip, many vexing problems were threshed out. Two changes in the Supreme Council were made. At Columbia, South Carolina, the old matter of sub rosa activities had reappeared. Efforts to repeal the anti-fraternity statute of the state had failed. The regulation prohibiting fraternities at Presbyterian College, at Clinton, had, however, been removed and on February 5, Beta Chapter had been restored. The Wofford and Charleston chapters were in a flourishing condition. Knowledge of these facts added to the impatience of those who had friends at the University of South Carolina. Students at the University were being initiated at nearby colleges and were attempting to carry on some degree of fraternal relation. The President of the University had, in correspondence, made some implied criticism of the administration of Pi Kappa Phi for permitting such actions. He himself was away during Heffner's visit to Columbia, but the latter wrote to him from Alabama stating in positive terms the policy of the fraternity toward sub rosa initiations:

ROY JACKSON HEFFNER
Sixth Supreme Archon of the Fraternity

May 17, 1921.

Dr. W. S. Currell, President,
University of South Carolina,
Columbia, South Carolina.

A number of years ago Pi Kappa Phi pledged itself to the Interfraternity Conference that it would countenance no sub rosa chapters, and it has rigidly kept that pledge. . . . There has been no national recognition, in any sense, of a chapter of the fraternity at your institution. To the best of my knowledge and belief there are no documents or other records of the fraternity in the possession of any student or students at your institution.

Until a very short time ago it was my personal belief that our men were conducting no activities at the University of South Carolina. Evidence to the contrary has been reaching me, however, to such extent that I determined a personal visit to the University as the only means of finding out what was really going on. On the evening of May 6th I succeeded in getting together all the students at the University who claimed any degree of affiliation with Pi Kappa Phi. . . .

The national government of the fraternity provided some years ago a pledge blank to be signed by a man before initiation. In this (form) statement was made that the pledger was a bona fide member of the institution wherein the initiating chapter was located. The national government believed that this would be protection against sub rosa activities. It has developed, however, that the students of your institution who were initiated by other chapters, have signed the pledge blank and have attempted to avoid a false statement by changing the wording of the pledge, or by some other pure technicality. In other words, they avoided the issue, and found ready help on the part of the initiating chapters.

I pointed out to these men these facts: That the first and most serious charge which can be brought against the fraternities to-day is that they are not law-abiding, and that this charge is too fundamentally uprooting to ever be permitted of substantiation; that the first duty of any fraternity, therefore, is to abide by the law, no matter how strongly it may feel that the law is entirely unjust, and no matter how strongly it may endeavor, by legitimate means, to have such a law changed; that the interests of the colleges and the universities of the country must come first, and those of the fraternities second, for without the colleges and the universities there could be no fraternities; that nothing of permanent advantage could be gained by operating in defiance of college authorities and officials, even though a temporary apparent gain might result; that the fraternity can not and will not permit the interests of its national organization to be jeopardized by and subordinated to the personal interests, prejudices, whims, fancies, and satisfactions of any one of its members, or any group of them.

Having made these views evident to them, I explained that by insisting on conducting activities without any legal sanction or encouragement whatever, and in open defiance of the intent and purpose of the Supreme Government, they were placing the Supreme Government on the defensive, creating no end of embarrassment for it and for themselves, creating a general atmosphere of falsehood, and in the end defeating their own purpose.

I firmly believe that these men have been meeting and conducting activities solely through a sense of "distorted loyalty," thinking that they were advancing the cause of the fraternity by so doing. I do not believe that they had ever before considered how far-reaching and distressing to the fraternity the results of their efforts might be. After having discussed such points with them they unanimously pledged me their word to eliminate all activities of fraternal nature in the future.

To further clinch the argument I told them that should any evidence reach the Supreme Government to prove that they were not living up to their word, every one of them would be expelled from any and all degrees of membership to which they might be entitled. . . .

As a further precaution I have explained to each chapter of the fraternity that if any case should arise of taking in a man who is not a regularly enrolled student of its own institution, its charter will be withdrawn immediately.

ROY J. HEFFNER

Eminent Supreme Archon

Since this comprehensive declaration of policy sub rosa activities have caused little trouble. The South Carolina anti-fraternity statute had placed the university in an untenable position, and the latter's interpretation of the law had not rendered its way easier. The dean wrote to John Carroll, Supreme Counsellor, in 1921:

"In reply to your inquiry, I beg to say that the University does not prohibit the wearing of fraternity pins by students who may have joined a fraternity before entering. All other students are forbidden to wear a badge, as the wearing of such is taken as prima facie evidence of violation of the law."

The fallacy in this ruling rested in the fact that if the student did not choose to tell, the university could not determine for itself when he joined his fraternity. The members of some fraternities continued to evade it.

The climax of Heffner's tour was reached when, on his return West, on May 19, Upsilon Chapter was installed at the University of Illinois. Two days later, Phi Chapter was added at the University of Tulsa. On the same day and at about the same time, Chi Chapter was being installed at Stetson in Florida. In the fall the Cornell chapter was installed.

On March 23, 1921, a complete and up-to-date edition of the constitution and by-laws of the fraternity, which had become confused through the legislation of successive conventions, was issued.

It was with high spirits that the fraternity prepared for the long-desired convention in California. Chapter conditions, meanwhile, had improved. More chapters were living in houses and the vigorous policy of the national administration was having general effect. The advance arrangements for the convention were made with more care than usual, and in The Star and Lamp for December, 1921, Supreme Archon Heffner discussed fully the important matters which should be considered.

The "Convention Special" was in charge of "Jimmie" Setze, Supreme Secretary, who scheduled a delightful trip by way of Denver and Salt Lake City, the return being over the southern route through Los Angeles and New Orleans. At Colorado City, the Pi Kappas explored the wonders of the Garden of the Gods and at Salt Lake City, on Christmas Day, they visited the Mormon Tabernacle and later smuggled "smokes" from kindly railroad officials. The "high point" of the outward journey was reached atop the Great Divide, where "Papa Jimmie" disclosed aboard the "Special" a Christmas tree with gifts for everyone.

Never did a more enthusiastic group arrive. Never was there a more royal welcome. For four days the men of Gamma vied with one another to show the "brothers from the East" the wonders of the West. There was a delegate from each chapter and many visitors, but the California chapter house was still large enough to accommodate all, and the actual sessions of the convention were held there. A vast amount of business was undertaken; but in the joyous procession of events which Californian hospitality had provided the chief result gained was renewed inspiration and zeal to accomplish greater things at home.

There was a motor trip among the Berkeley Hills; a memorable dinner party given by the San Francisco Alumni Chapter at "Tait's"; and, at the last, the banquet at the Hotel Whitcomb on New Year's Eve, of which "Jimmie" Setze was toastmaster. By the next day the "Special" had moved on to Pasadena, where the visitors enjoyed the delights of the Tournament of Roses and saw the great New Year's football game between California and Washington and Jefferson.

Then the long return trip was begun, with the car still filled with native fruits which hospitable alumni had placed on board at Fresno. At Williams, Arizona, a side trip was made to the Grand Cañon of the Colorado. From the snow-covered rim of El Tonto, by the Bright Angel Trail, the descent was made to the veritable summerland below. Those who were privileged to make this pilgrimage lived in closest fellowship for three weeks. Except for the days in Berkeley, the "Pi Kapp Special" was their home. So vivid were the recollections from the journey, that the travelers returned doubly united in spirit—as did the crusaders of old—knights of the Golden West!

The California convention was notable in that it awoke a new national consciousness. The fraternal spirit shown by the California chapter was a revelation. In spite of the fact that it was necessary for them to return to the university in the very middle of their Christmas vacation of a month, every man was on hand to welcome the arriving delegates. The convention also proved, however, once more that miracles of studied achievement seldom happen when so much is crowded into too short a time.

In his report Supreme Archon Heffner recalled that six new chapters had been added during the preceding biennium, and one dormant chapter restored; while charters had been issued to five alumni chapters, with increasing alumni activities in other cities. The financial system of the fraternity was scored severely as lacking in plan and supervision. The Star and Lamp was praised for its improvement editorially. The scholarship of the fraternity was "only fair." Despite improvements, the ritual was declared "excellent in principle, but weak in detail, and poor in application." The constitution and by-laws, it was said, needed "a large amount of trimming and pruning." The feasibility of the establishment of a central office with an executive secretary in charge was discussed; but partly due to inability to visualize the actual results to be derived from this step, and largely through anxiety concerning the financial outcome, the matter was postponed.

Both during these years and elsewhere in this account it has been necessary to view the executive processes of the fraternity largely through the office of the Supreme Archon. This has seemed a natural procedure as the reports of the Supreme Archon are necessarily all-embracing, and his acts, as the executive head, should represent the combined policies of all the national officers. The reports of the supreme officers presented at Berkeley showed a creditable degree of accomplishment on the part of each in the discharge of his duties. But there was still much duplication of effort and of expense.

Many of the recommendations contained in these reports perished for lack of time for their perfection. The committee on the constitution and by-laws got no further than the preamble and Article I, defining the name and objects of the fraternity. The latter, written by George E. Sheetz, Charleston '23, has alone remained unchanged through subsequent editions. J. Cozby Byrd, who had been appointed at Charlotte as a committee of one to revise the coat-of-arms, reported that his work was incomplete, as did the committee on rituals.

An amendment to the constitution was proposed by George M. Grant, of Alabama, empowering the Supreme Archon to appoint a nominating committee on the first day of the convention "to present to the convention the names of two brothers for each office called for by the constitution."

As with the proposal ten years before to change the name of the magazine, the liveliest debate of the convention ensued when the committee on national organization recommended that the prefix "Eminent" be dropped from the titles of supreme officers. The "modern element," led by "Jimmie" Setze, finally prevailed over the "Old Guard," officered by Harper, Young, and Byrd.

The annual per capita undergraduate dues were increased to $8; the undergraduate charter fee to $150. The plan of paying nominal salaries to the supreme officers was extended and a salary of ten dollars per month each was authorized for the Supreme Archon, Supreme Treasurer, Supreme Secretary, and the Editor-in-Chief of The Star and Lamp.

Wade S. Bolt, former editor of the magazine, was authorized to prepare a book of songs of Pi Kappa Phi.

Payment of a life subscription to The Star and Lamp at the time of initiation was made a requirement of each new member. A budget of $9,230 was adopted.

A petition from Rollins College was rejected. It was decided that each petitioning group, to be eligible for acceptance, must be at least one year old, must own or rent a house, and must have at least ten members; and that chapters should not be placed in colleges with a total enrollment of less than 250.

Organization of the fraternity into districts and the appointment of a chapter inspector for each was authorized. Certain national offices were abolished. The Supreme Chaplain and the Supreme Warden, while taking rank as supreme officers, were to be appointed by the Supreme Archon at the opening of each convention. Except for the Supreme Archon, the Greek titles were discarded for simpler English forms. After the election the national officers consisted of the following: Supreme Archon, Roy J. Heffner; Supreme Treasurer, Henry G. Harper, Jr.; Supreme Secretary, J. W. Setze, Jr.; Supreme Alumni Secretary, John E. Havis; Editor-in-Chief of The Star and Lamp, Richard L. Young. A Supreme Advisory Board was created.

Thus, while many of the old problems remained, considerable improvement was effected along executive and financial lines. The work of the Supreme Chapter itself was better organized, as the former custom of resolving the convention into a committee of the whole was discontinued and as far as possible the work was assigned to special committees.

It is noteworthy that this convention was one of the first, if not the first, in which a duly accredited representative of an alumni chapter took part. J. Chester Reeves, Charleston '16, represented the Alumni Chapter of Atlanta, of which he was Archon, and through his efforts it was decided to hold the convention for 1923 in that city.

The principal change in officers was the election of Henry G. Harper as Supreme Treasurer. Considering the many ambitions of the fraternity in proportion to its financial resources, and the fact that it had never had a strong financial policy, the choice was most opportune. Harper, too, had a conviction that the "root of all our trouble" was finance. He proceeded promptly to take steps to improve the situation. Chapters which were in good financial condition were required to pay their accounts; others, which were in difficulties, were assisted; and in some cases indebtedness to the Supreme Chapter was cancelled. Promptness was insisted upon. The Interfraternity Conference Accounting System, which had been authorized at Charlotte, but never installed, was introduced into all chapters and its use required. Enforcement of these measures proved a severe shock to some chapters; but in the end it is generally agreed that Henry Harper laid the cornerstone of the sound financial condition which has obtained in the fraternity ever since.

During this year an extended effort was made to influence legislation in South Carolina for the repeal of the state anti-fraternity law. John D. Carroll, Past Supreme Archon, was requested by officials of the Interfraternity Conference to assume leadership of the proposed South Carolina Interfraternity Association. Unfortunately, an encounter in the capitol between the leader of the anti-fraternity element in the legislature and a member of Kappa Alpha (S) brought unfavorable publicity upon the movement and nothing was accomplished.

In February, 1922, the fraternity was saddened by the death of Andrew Kroeg, who died suddenly in Charleston, where he had lived and watched with pride the growth of his fraternity. A keen sense of the fraternity's great loss was expressed by Founder Harry Mixson:

"Andrew Kroeg is dead, and all Pi Kappa Phi is in mourning. . . . Hundreds of personal, professional and social friends mourn his untimely end, and shed the tribute of their tear, but it is the sad privilege of all Pi Kappa Phi to be more sorrowful, for to us he was more than a friend. He was the very main spring of our fraternity—in its early days—the spirit that kept her alive; he guided her over the shoals of danger; and rejoiced with her when she succeeded. . . . I knew him as a true and loyal brother, with a clear vision for the good of our fraternity; with a friendship that never wavered, and with a spirit that was indomitable."

It was expected that from the enthusiasm engendered by the California convention much accomplishment would quickly result. Instead it was to be another year of trial.

A strange lassitude fell upon the Supreme Secretary. No attention was paid to the varied routine of the fraternity, nearly all of which passed through the hands of that officer. When the hopelessness of the situation was at last fully realized, his resignation was requested, but even then months of delay ensued before any semblance of records were received and these proved to be inadequate. The unfortunate occurrence was a serious blow to the national organization and a severe lesson in the dangers of the "part time" method of administration.

On May 13, 1922, George M. Grant, Alabama '22, was appointed Supreme Secretary. He took hold of the work with enthusiasm and attained creditable results. The long-standing cry for a more representative membership certificate was answered. Grant arranged with the Chas. H. Elliott Company of Philadelphia for the production of an engraved and engrossed "shingle," which, with a few improvements, remains the standard design.

On October 3, 1922, the Supreme Archon announced the division of the fraternity into eleven districts, comprising the states of New York, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Illinois and Indiana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, and those of the Pacific Coast, with a chapter inspector in charge of each. This was designed to promote closer contact between the chapters and members of the fraternity and the representatives of the national government.

In November, Omega Chapter was installed at Purdue. This installation had been postponed from the preceding spring.

A renewed impulse was given the movement for the formation of alumni chapters through the persistent efforts of George D. Driver, Nebraska '20, who succeeded Havis as Supreme Alumni Secretary.

Atlanta, particularly, became a center of alumnus activity, fostered largely by Ray Kenneth Smathers, Chapter Inspector for Georgia. Smathers displayed unusual force and activity. The Georgia District was reorganized, a state council formed, and frequent conclaves and dinners held. His efforts were not confined to the problems within his district. So far-reaching were they that, as the convention year drew on, Atlanta became more and more the center of interest in the fraternity, not only for the convention to be held there, but because of the extraordinary impetus which the fraternity's affairs had taken on in that section.

During 1923 a petition was received from the College of William and Mary, but the local became disorganized and the petition was abandoned. In the spring of 1923 chapters were installed at Mercer, Tulane, and Oklahoma, increasing the number of active chapters to twenty-three. During Heffner's administration, ten chapters were installed and Beta restored.

As the convention approached, for the first time the fraternity experienced a real publicity campaign for attendance. Ray Kenneth Smathers was in charge of all arrangements and his inexhaustible energy was thrown without reserve into the campaign.

With the October, 1923, issue, The Star and Lamp underwent a radical change. The entire make-up was altered and the page size enlarged to seven and one-half inches by ten and one-half inches. The magazine was still the only real publication the fraternity had. The constitution and laws had never been printed as authorized, although in January, 1923, a revised edition had been issued. In January, 1922, a small directory of membership had been published by John E. Havis and J. Cozby Byrd, but the record it provided was far from complete.

The twelfth convention met December 26, 1923. A splendid program of entertainment was provided. The theater party; the dance at the Druid Hills Club; the sightseeing cavalcade which toured Atlanta; Stone Mountain, where Pi Kapps saw the work undertaken on the great memorial to the leaders of the Confederacy—all will long be remembered. The attendance exceeded that of any previous Supreme Chapter meeting.

Supreme Archon Heffner had announced his wish to retire, and interest in the convention was heightened by the keen sectional rivalry which developed over the choice of his successor. At no time in the history of the fraternity has there been so close an approach to a political campaign. His activity and definite talent for organization had caused the leaders in Georgia to exert themselves to secure the nomination for Ray Smathers, Chapter Inspector for the Georgia District. Leaders in other sections felt that the administration had become of such importance that one more experienced in national affairs was required. It was even suggested that one of the veterans in the fraternity's service be drafted again for its leadership.

The result at the convention was a deadlock. When the nominations were read, George D. Driver, of Nebraska, and Ray Kenneth Smathers were proposed for Supreme Archon. The former was elected. Henry Harper declined nomination to succeed himself as Supreme Treasurer. William Fogarty of Charleston, a brother of Founder Simon Fogarty, was elected to fill the position. The chairman of the committee presenting the nominations was W. Hampton Mixson, Jr., a brother of Founder Harry Mixson.

The convention was distinguished by the presence of the two living Founders, Lawrence Harry Mixson and Simon Fogarty, and a number of other alumni prominent in the fraternity, whose counsel was invaluable at this critical time.

For the first time the proceedings of the convention were recorded in full by professional reporters. The outstanding achievement was definite authorization for the creation of a central office and the appointment of an executive secretary. Smathers had taken up the fight for the establishment of the office and, finally, all were agreed that it should be done, but fearful as to finances. The Supreme Council was even empowered to request contributions from alumni, if necessary, to support the office. With the exception of the Executive Secretary and the Supreme Editor, salaries for officers were abolished.

Second in importance was the granting of authority to the supreme officers to revise completely the constitution and laws of the fraternity. It was realized that there was not time at the convention for the completion of such a task. The Supreme Council was instructed to submit this revision to the chapters for ratification, upon which the new code should become effective at once.

One of the tasks which had been undertaken by Ray Smathers was the compiling of a new directory of membership. The work was never finished. Considerable progress, however, was made and the chief records of membership which were turned over to the new central office were those gathered by Ray Smathers and Lamar Murdaugh in Atlanta in 1923. The membership had grown in four years from less than nine hundred to approximately two thousand. It is worthy of note that the report of Supreme Secretary Grant showed that since his appointment in May, 1922, nine hundred and eighty-three certificates of membership had been issued.

The report of Supreme Treasurer Harper reflected high credit upon the achievements of his two years in office. The cash balance reported was the largest in the history of the fraternity. The receipts for 1922-1923, including convention assessments, totaled $22,407.57.

At the banquet which marked the close of the convention, the retiring Supreme Archon, Roy Heffner, was presented with a handsome silver service in recognition of his outstanding work for the fraternity. The efforts of Theodore Kelly, the founder of California Gamma, had indeed brought a manifold return.

VI

ESTABLISHING ADMINISTRATIVE EFFICIENCY

1924-1927

THE four years following the Atlanta Convention saw greater strides taken by the fraternity than during any like period previously. Yet at the outset the problems confronting the Supreme Council were great. As an aftermath of the convention there appeared a seemingly endless financial labyrinth. This was caused by the ambitious way in which the convention had been planned. In order to protect the name of the fraternity the Supreme Treasurer was authorized, finally, to pay out considerable sums to settle claims against the convention.

During the spring, internal dissension arose in the Tulane chapter—installed the year before—which threatened to disrupt the chapter and to necessitate the revocation of the charter. Supreme Secretary Grant was delegated to investigate the situation. Happily, the close of the college year allowed the situation to cool and the crisis passed.

In February, 1924, the Washington and Florida chapters were installed. A petition from Centenary was rejected by the Oklahoma chapter. This was doubtless fortunate as shortly thereafter the petitioning organization dissolved. In May the Davidson chapter was restored.

Following the spirit of the instructions of the convention, the members of the Supreme Council met in Nashville, Tennessee (the most central point for the officers), on July 19-21, 1924, to revise the constitution and by-laws. The task was indeed no light one, but the almost universally favorable reception which was accorded the draft they produced was evidence of the manner in which it was accomplished and of the work and thought put upon it.

The matter of appointing a full-time secretary had also been considered during the spring. There were three candidates for the office. George E. Sheetz, Charleston, '23, was elected and accepted the appointment. It was felt that at first the executive office might advantageously be established in Charleston, South Carolina. This city afforded proximity to a majority of the chapters, close contact with the Supreme Treasurer, and a source of historical material which would be valuable in co-ordinating the modern organization desired with the policies of those who had gone before.

On September 1, 1924, the Central Office was established. The quarters were in Room 11, No. 39 Broad Street. It was discovered later that, quite by coincidence, this was the same building in which Andrew Kroeg had had his first law office, and where many of the early steps of the fraternity were planned. The start was made with a handful of ill-assorted records and several ancient typewriters. It devolved upon the Executive Secretary to assume the administrative functions of five officers. In addition to these diverse duties, problems both old and new pressed for attention. It was necessary, in the main, to evolve policy and order where none existed. Records of membership, of fraternity property, of precedent and procedure had to be secured from various sources; and the process was slow. It was necessary to co-ordinate the old with the new—that "the spirit, principles, and traditions" of Pi Kappa Phi should be preserved unimpaired.

Great enthusiasm was manifested throughout the fraternity over the establishment of a headquarters office. One of the first tangible results was the publication of the new code of laws. In accordance with the mandate of the convention, this had been prepared by the Supreme Council and was now submitted to the chapters for ratification. On November 22, upon the favorable vote of three-fourths of the chapters, the revised "Constitution and Supreme Laws" were declared in effect. A printed edition followed under date of January 15, 1925, which included a list of examination questions and a complete index.

In December, Alpha Zeta Chapter was installed at Oregon Agricultural College, becoming the third chapter on the Pacific Coast.

Habits of laxness in co-operating with the national officers, and poor financial management within themselves, still held sway in some chapters. During the year 1924-1925 the Georgia chapter, particularly, was weak in these respects. Through the united efforts of alumni of the chapter, the Executive Secretary, and the Atlanta Alumni Chapter, the chapter has become one of the strongest chapters of the fraternity.

The general spirit, however, was excellent. One of the best indications of this was the increasing number of publications and news letters issued by the individual chapters. Some of these not only served as the "missing link" between chapter and alumnus, but showed real merit in content and make-up. Those of most frequent issue were: The Gamazette, The Epsilonian, The Eta Scroll, The Nebraska Nu's, The Xi Bulletin, The Omicronite, Upsilon Ups, The Cornell Psiren, The Omegalite, The Alphabet, The Pi Kappa Phi Star, The Alpha Deltan, The Gatorzette, The Alpha Zeta News, The Alpha Theta Stater, and The Birmingham Alumnus. The last is the only known instance within the fraternity of a regular publication issued by an alumni chapter. It was both edited and published by V. Hain Huey, long-time Archon of the Birmingham Alumni Chapter. The best of the undergraduate publications was The Pi Kappa Phi Star, issued by the Oklahoma chapter.

While it was anticipated that unprecedented growth would follow the establishment of the national office, the officers of the fraternity did not depart from the established policy of "conservative aggressiveness." On January 5, 1925, Supreme Archon Driver wrote:

"In connection with nearly every petition, there is an urge from someone for speedy action. This is usually very commendable on their part and is occasioned by a fine and constructive interest in Pi Kappa Phi. However, the dignity of the fraternity, the significance of a charter grant, and the advisability of letting consideration of a petition extend over a sufficient period to orient the judgment of those who vote on it, seem to me of too much importance to make any other than rather deliberate action advisable."

The fears which had existed regarding the financial hazard of maintaining a national office were allayed by the first financial statement issued by Executive Secretary Sheetz. This showed, for the period of four months, from September 30, 1924, to February 1, 1925, a surplus of $2,772.60.

On March 2, 1925, the fraternity was shocked by the death of William Fogarty, Supreme Treasurer. He had been a devoted officer and was one of the best-liked men in the fraternity. He was the first supreme officer to die in office.

The spring of 1925 saw the admission of chapters at Howard and Michigan State. The roll of active chapters had now increased to twenty-nine. Prospects for more scientific extension in the future came from the completion by the Executive Secretary during the summer of a comprehensive survey of over five hundred colleges and universities.

The work of securing correct records of membership had progressed, meanwhile; but the lists were in such shape that it was not until 1926 that it was felt that a new directory could be published. The condition is indicated by the notation on one envelope returned from California: "Thees man he been gon ten year."

In November, 1925, new editions of all the rituals were circulated.

The Atlanta Convention had decided, upon the invitation of the Chicago Alumni Chapter, that the Supreme Chapter should next meet in Chicago. This was a strong indication of the growing strength of the fraternity in the North. Chicago's claim to the convention was presented by Carl L. Kirk, Illinois '23. His talents were further displayed in the exceptional appeals which were broadcasted from Chicago during the fall of 1925 proclaiming the "biggest and best" convention.

It was preëminently a social convention; but a precedent was set in combining a thoughtful, hospitable program with a thoroughly businesslike plan of management. The General Chairman of arrangements for the convention was Elmer N. Turnquist, Illinois '18, the capable archon of the Chicago Alumni Chapter. In recognition of his admirable work in handling the convention program, "Turney," was elected to the Supreme Council. The convention was featured by a model initiation conducted by Dr. J. Friend Day, of the Emory chapter. Color was lent to the social events by "Doc" Day's bright Trinity blazer and the presence of Midshipman Frank Wickhorst, Illinois, '26, captain of the Navy football team which played the Army in Chicago on Thanksgiving, 1925. And under the direction of Fred R. Sturm, Nebraska, '24, accompanied by Ray Staater, one of the original members of the Cincinnati chapter, it was a singing convention.

On the last day a memorial service, written by Brother Day, was conducted by the Supreme Historian and was adopted for use at future conventions. So outstanding was the work of Dr. Day with the initiation ceremonies, the memorial service, the address broadcasted from radio station WLS, and as the author of the "Ritual Hymn," that it was a mere formality for him to be appointed as chairman of a new committee on rituals, to perfect the revisions long-contemplated but never completed.

A budget of $30,650 was adopted for the next two years. Provision was made for the publication of a new type of song book, as the plan of issuing a loose-leaf book had not received adequate support.

The invitation presented by V. Hain Huey on behalf of the Birmingham Alumni Chapter for the next convention to meet in Birmingham was enthusiastically accepted.

On December 30, following the banquet, at which Wade Bolt presided as toastmaster, a meeting of the Supreme Council was held, when official action was taken on a number of matters of too detailed a nature for consideration by the convention.

The one disquieting feature of the convention had been the absence from all business sessions of the delegate from the Tulsa chapter. For some time the chapter had not been in good standing. When it was discovered that the delegate had returned home, an investigation was ordered. Following the convention the chapter was visited by the Executive Secretary. Conditions at the University of Tulsa were not favorable to normal chapter life; the institution had not developed as had been anticipated; and the chapter had finally got into difficulties with the authorities. The alumni of Phi responded loyally and sought to place the chapter again upon a sound basis. The situation, however, developed so that in May, 1926, the Supreme Council suspended the charter.

In April, 1926, the directory of membership compiled by Executive Secretary Sheetz was distributed. It was printed by the George Banta Publishing Company and presented the most complete record of the fraternity's growth assembled up to that time. It contained 2,928 names, classified by chapters, states, and alphabetically. Later in the year a new song book, edited by Fred R. Sturm, Nebraska '24, was published. It was printed by Rayner Dalheim and Company, of Chicago.

During the summer an incendiary fired a number of fraternity houses at Emory University, of which the house of Eta Chapter was the first. The house and its valuable furnishings were destroyed, the loss being only partially covered by insurance.

Two petitions from Alabama Polytechnic Institute had been under consideration for some time. Finally, the petition of Tau Kappa Phi was granted and on October 2, 1926, Alpha Iota Chapter¹ was installed at "Auburn."

In recognition of the increasing number of chapters which were building or planning to build their own houses, and in order to have a trained official of the fraternity who could help with such plans, the Supreme Council appointed J. Cozby Byrd, Georgia Tech, '19, as Advisory Architect of the fraternity. Byrd had for some time been secretary of the Committee on Chapter House Architecture of the Interfraternity Conference.

The regular meeting of the Supreme Council between conventions was held at the Central Office in Charleston, South Carolina, on October 21-23, 1926. A great many important matters of detail were disposed of. A definite policy for the investment of endowment and surplus funds was adopted. It was required that each chapter treasurer should be bonded in a minimum amount of $1,000. The term of suspension for the Tulsa chapter was extended to May 1, 1927. New rules were adopted for the control of gambling and keeping intoxicating liquor in chapter houses. Revisions of the coat-of-arms² and of the charter form for undergraduate chapters were approved, both having been prepared by Executive Secretary Sheetz.

A report was received from the committee on rituals.

² The committee appointed at the Convention of 1921 did not finish its work and the design hastily put into use in 1922 contained further inaccuracies.

This was accepted and a vote of thanks extended to Dr. J. Friend Day for his thorough and scholarly work. Not only had he completely revised the ritual of initiation, which through the lapse of years had assimilated many unofficial practices, but, in collaboration with the Executive Secretary and Mr. Otto Ihling, of the Ihling Bros. Everard Company, he had designed a new set of regalia and ritualistic equipment which rendered the ceremonies more beautiful and more impressive. A ritual of institution for undergraduate chapters, conceived by the Executive Secretary, and perfected by Dr. Day, was also adopted.

Following the Chicago Convention a committee on scholarship had been appointed. The chairman of this committee was Dr. Will E. Edington, Illinois '09. The committee recommended a systematic check on the scholarship of the fraternity with appropriate awards for ranking individuals and chapters. With only slight modification, the report was accepted.

The question of a permanent location for the Central Office was reviewed at length. It was generally agreed that, from the standpoint of immediate accessibility to chapters, Atlanta was the best location; but that, allowing for future growth, Chicago was closer to the eventual center of the fraternity's activities. It was decided that, "at such time as the Supreme Archon and the Executive Secretary shall decide," the office should "Go to Chicago."

The move to Chicago was undertaken the following spring, and completed on March 11, 1927. It was desired to locate the headquarters of the fraternity in Evanston, the seat of Northwestern University, a suburb just north of Chicago; but suitable offices were not available at the time. Therefore the Central Office was temporarily located in Chicago. The office was completely equipped with fire-resisting cabinets for records, a library of fraternity material, dictaphones, and other necessary accessories.

On March 12, Alpha Kappa Chapter was installed at the University of Michigan and, on April 9, Alpha Lambda Chapter was established at Mississippi. The latter was a significant occasion, for, by a state law, fraternities had been prohibited from "Ole Miss" since 1912. Pi Kappa Phi was one of the first to enter the institution after the law's repeal.

In the fall, for the third time, two chapters were installed on the same day, when Alpha Mu was established at Penn State and Alpha Nu³ at Ohio State.

The fourteenth convention, which met in Birmingham on December 28, 1927, established a new record for attendance. The reports of the supreme officers showed great progress made in the fraternity during the biennium. Thirty-four active chapters were reported and seventeen alumni chapters. Again ten new chapters had been installed in four years. The membership was over 3,600. Supreme Treasurer Reeves reported a cash balance of $6,990.76; the Star and Lamp Endowment, $21,702.98; and total receipts for 1926-27, $33,914.40. Supreme Historian Raymond B. Nixon reported upon the work done by Dr. Day in revising the rituals. Much credit is due to Ray Nixon, Emory, '25, for the thorough manner in which he coöperated with the committee on rituals and the Central Office in improving the ritualistic work. He recommended that a "Twenty-fifth Anniversary History and Directory," which had been proposed the year before by the Executive Secretary, be published in 1929. The motion was approved and the present volume is the result. It was also recommended and approved that a suitable memorial be placed at the College of Charleston, in 1929, commemorating the founding of the fraternity there in 1904.

A notable report was submitted by the committee on scholarship, showing in detail the work which had been done by the chairman, Will E. Edington, Illinois, '09.

³ The chapter's publication is called The Alpha Nu's.

CHARTER OF THE SOUTH CAROLINA CHAPTER

Granted in 1927, following the repeal of the state anti-fraternity law

The convention was not preëminently a legislative one, but a decided spirit of progress was evident. Renewed interest was manifested in a national endowment for the fraternity. A standing committee of financiers was appointed to pass upon all investments of endowment funds, which, it was provided, should be only in securities "eligible for the investment of national bank funds under the present National Banking Law, or for trust fund investments under the laws of New York, Massachusetts, or Connecticut." The undergraduate charter fee was raised to $200 and the alumni charter fee to $25. The membership certificate fee of $1.50 was abolished. It was provided that $5 should be collected from each initiate for a general convention fund, thus eliminating the previous method of prorating convention costs among the chapters. Longer terms for the Supreme Archon and the Supreme Treasurer were discussed. A budget of $32,840 was adopted. T. R. Waggoner, Trinity, '22, was named chairman of the committee on endowment investments.

The convention was again featured by a model initiation conducted by Joseph Friend Day, which was even more impressive than the one in Chicago. The newly designed regalia and paraphernalia were used for the first time. An alumnus of the Howard chapter and a pledge of Washington and Lee were initiated.

The election of officers was unusual in that only one name was presented for each office and the nominees elected by acclamation. Anthony Pelzer Wagener, Charleston, '06, succeeded George D. Driver as Supreme Archon, and Leo H. Pou, Alabama, '21, became Supreme Historian. The latter had established an enviable record as Chapter Inspector for Alabama.

* The Pi Kappas of Birmingham, following the example of diligence set by the General Chairman, V. Hain Huey, Alabama, '24, had made exceptionally handsome provision for the entertainment of the convention. The finest dance ever held in the fraternity, no doubt, was the Grand Ball on the second evening at the Highland Park Golf Club, at which more than five hundred members and guests were present.

The banquet on the last evening was featured by addresses by Founders Harry Mixson and Simon Fogarty; George D. Driver and John D. Carroll, Past Supreme Archons; Dr. J. Friend Day; and by the newly installed Supreme Archon, A. Pelzer Wagener. In concluding his address, Brother Carroll presented to George D. Driver, on behalf of the fraternity, a diamond badge, in token of the esteem in which he was held for his years of service as Supreme Archon of the fraternity. One of the most stirring addresses made, although quite impromptu, was by Bartolo Rodriguez, Georgia Tech, '20, of Tampico, Mexico. Later, on request, "Roddy," accompanied at the piano by his charming wife, entertained the gathering with a number of Spanish love songs.

THE END OF A QUARTER CENTURY

1928-1929

THE election at Birmingham of Pelzer Wagener as Supreme Archon was peculiarly fitting. Toward the end of a significant period, as the fraternity planned to return to the scene of its founding to celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary, it chose as its leader one of the original seven who first established the name of Pi Kappa Phi in South Carolina. From long years of inexperienced groping the fraternity had emerged, strong, confident, alert. It was fitting that now it should be led by one who, while insisting upon smoothness and efficiency in the working organization of the fraternity, could, in his first message, point the way so earnestly to the higher things for which Pi Kappa Phi stands:

"I . . . call upon every active member, every alumnus to study, revere, and exemplify in his life and in his attitude towards his brothers the ideals of our fraternity. Let us not make of her a mere replica of others. Let us rather introduce into all our activities—social, athletic, intellectual—such a spirit of high purpose, steady effort, brotherly sympathy, unquestioned honor that we shall be pointed out not as fraternity men, but as unique among such—men of Pi Kappa Phi. To further these ends and to make our beloved Pi Kappa Phi glorious and great I pledge myself. I challenge every Pi Kapp to do likewise."

The Star and Lamp for February, 1928, carried as a supplement "A Digest of the Minutes | of the | Fourteenth Supreme Chapter Meeting," prepared by the Executive Secretary, from the stenographic report of Wilbur D. White, Wofford, '19. This presented the proceedings in a more comprehensive form than any previously published report had done. The minutes for the Atlanta Convention of 1923 had been printed in full, but without index or list of registrants.

The years 1928 and 1929 were ones of steady development. Numerous changes took place, but as the spirit and strength of the fraternity became more and more apparent, Pi Kapps everywhere responded with ever greater enthusiasm. The visitation of chapters received greater attention. While visits to chapters and alumni centers had carried the Executive Secretary into thirty-two states, the multifold duties incident to establishing and maintaining the Central Office had not permitted as frequent chapter visits as were desired. It was now planned to increase the administrative staff in order to secure greater freedom for the officers for visitation and creative work.

In The Star and Lamp for May, 1928, appeared a vigorous pronouncement against the hazing of pledges. In bringing before the District Archons the resolution of the Interfraternity Conference condemning such practices, Supreme Archon Wagener wrote:

"There is no provision in the law of Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity relative to hazing. The sentiment of the Supreme Council and of the fraternity at large is, however, strongly opposed to such practices. We possess a beautiful ceremony of initiation which in itself is dignified and impressive and which is ruined by any admixture of hazing.

It is my belief that certain of our chapters still indulge in the practice of hazing pledges before initiation. You are therefore requested to call the attention of the chapters in your district to this matter and to urge as strongly as possible the abolishment of hazing in every form. I prefer to use advice and persuasion rather than definite legislation. Point out the danger and folly of such a practice and the injury which is done to the fraternity in the public esteem."

The same issue contained a pointed statement by the Executive Secretary of the policy of the Supreme Council regarding delinquent accounts owed to chapters. The deliberate neglect of financial obligations by members was declared due cause for suspension or expulsion. A renewed effort was made to show that it was not more brotherly, but in the end less so, to permit carelessness in chapter finance.

On May 1, 1928, an agreement was concluded with the Ihling Bros. Everard Company of Kalamazoo, Michigan, for their services as sole official costumers to the fraternity for the new regalia and ritualistic equipment required by the chapters.

Before the Birmingham Convention, Executive Secretary Sheetz had made known to the Supreme Council his intention not to offer as a candidate to succeed himself in office, but had indicated his desire to continue the administrative work of the fraternity until a successor was elected. In May the Supreme Council announced the election of Howard Dayton Leake, Washington and Lee, '24, to the office, to become effective September 15, 1928. An assistant secretary was appointed in July, William R. Blalock, Emory, '28, being chosen for the position.

On September 12-14, 1928, the regular "in between" conference of the Supreme Council was held. It was a highly productive and inspiring meeting. The rather formidable agenda of Supreme Archon Wagener had been circulated in August and the business of the conference was handled with dispatch.

It was decided to transfer the Central Office from Chicago to a site selected by Executive Secretary Sheetz in Evanston, Illinois. The duties of the Executive Secretary were defined for the first time. It was ordered "that the chapter inspectors be given the title of district archon." A rearrangement of districts was authorized and nominations of district archons for the same were confirmed. The district archons were encouraged to hold district conclaves.¹ The district archon in every district having more than one chapter was required to recommend to the Supreme Archon an alumnus to act as chapter adviser for each chapter in his district. A plan submitted by Brother Leake for the "Supervision and Control of Chapter Finances by the Central Office," the principal feature of which was to bring greater pressure upon the collection of individual accounts, was adopted.

Plans were formulated for the publication of the "Twenty-fifth Anniversary History and Directory" proposed at the Birmingham Convention. The Supreme Historian, Leo H. Pou, had enthusiastically pursued the recommendations of his predecessor for the publication of the book. An outline of contents, prepared for it by the Executive Secretary, was approved.

On the last evening of the conference, the visiting officers attended a dinner in Chicago at which more than 100 members and guests of the Chicago Alumni Chapter were present.

George E. Sheetz, retiring Executive Secretary, continued at the Central Office for a considerable time after giving up the active work of the office, in order to perfect a number of special undertakings. Among these were: a combined manual and report for chapter visitation; a detailed schedule of arrangements for the installation of chapters; the collation for historical purposes of the large quantity of original records, correspondence, and photographs which had been collected since the establishment of the Central Office; and the inauguration of a system by which all records of membership are controlled permanently from specially devised metal plates.

To improving the insignia of the fraternity he gave particular attention. In conjunction with William R. Blalock, Emory, '28, who executed the drawings, complete specifications and illustrations were made, and approved by the Supreme Council, for each emblem. These not only corrected the designs to the rules of heraldry, but greatly improved their artistic qualities. The coat of arms was drawn in line, illuminated in colors, and cast in bronze. Its official description or blazon was revised. New designs were submitted for the Great Seal² of the fraternity and for the seal authorized for the use of undergraduate chapters. Specifications and drawings for a flag and for some fifteen decorative designs, incorporating the emblems of the fraternity, were also completed.

During the four years following the creation of the office of Executive Secretary, the membership had doubled; the roll of active chapters had been increased from twenty-six to thirty-four. The resources of the fraternity had grown from $10,749.99 on September 30, 1924, to $36,406.94 on September 30, 1928, although during the same period greater expense had been assumed than ever before. The administrative headquarters of the fraternity had been built up to the degree of efficiency which the growth of the fraternity required.

In November of 1928 a completely new, bound edition of the ritual of initiation was issued, incorporating all previous revisions, and containing helpful notes and indices covering the required paraphernalia and procedure. During the year a burial ritual was completed by J. Friend Day, chairman of the committee on rituals, and approved by the Supreme Council.

²The design appears on the cover of this book. The description reads: "The Great Seal of the fraternity shall be the shield of arms, encircled by seven palmettes, within a circular band on which shall be the legend, PI KAPPA PHI FRATERNITY—1904—, the date closed between two rosettes." From an heraldic standpoint, this design is superior to the original seal, which bore the fraternity badge. It was intended that the seven palmettes—the conventional form of the palm or palmetto frond—should signify the seven South Carolinians who, including the Founders, first bore the name of Pi Kappa Phi in "The Palmetto State." The palm has, of course, familiar association as a symbol of superiority, of success, and of rejoicing, both in Greek and Roman history and in modern times.

The first chapter to be installed in 1928 was Alpha Xi at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. The chapter has been distinguished by the large number of prominent alumni of the local, Psi Sigma, who have remained constant to the unity of their fraternity since the charter was granted and who accepted allegiance to Pi Kappa Phi. The Woodbird, the publication of the local organization, has been continued by the Brooklyn chapter. In 1929 an "Exoteric Manual" was published by the chapter, designed to furnish information to pledges prior to initiation.

In 1928, petitions from Muhlenberg College and from the College of William and Mary were rejected.

In January, 1929, Executive Secretary Leake issued a new edition of the Constitution and Supreme Laws, including an appendix containing the rulings of the Supreme Council.

The visits made by the Executive Secretary during the college year 1928-1929 disclosed wide variance in chapter conditions. Many chapters were still in financial difficulties. However, while closer organization and supervision remained the vital need, improvement was evident in almost every particular. The investigations made by the Executive Secretary and the reports of the committee on scholarship since the first ratings were made during 1925-26 showed improvement in this respect.

In the fifteen years since its authorization no issue of The Fokromix had ever appeared. Frequent bulletins containing announcements and general news were sent to the chapters, but it was not until after the establishment of the Central Office that the use of a publication which would reach the entire membership became feasible. In 1929 the Executive Secretary decided to make use of this more intimate method of presenting to the fraternity vital facts about the organization. In May the first number of The Fokromix appeared. Chapter problems, finance, and general policies were discussed. A list, which had been prepared by Supreme Archon Wagener and Executive Secretary Sheetz, of forty-nine selected colleges and universities which were considered the most desirable locations for chapters of the fraternity, was included. It was shown that an increasing number of local fraternities were seeking charters from Pi Kappa Phi. The publication was received so enthusiastically that it was decided to issue it regularly as an esoteric magazine.

On May 25, the Iowa State chapter was installed. During the summer announcement was made of the granting of a charter to the local Kappa Phi at the University of the South. A few weeks later the petition of Phi Pi Sigma at Furman University, to be chartered as Delta Chapter, was approved. With the installation of these chapters in the fall, the fraternity approached the close of its first quarter century with a record of forty chapters established, two of which were inactive.

A summary of the reports from the chapters as of April 30, 1929, shows that for thirty-five chapters active at that time there were 853 undergraduates, rendering an average membership per chapter of 24.37. By the close of the year the total membership was approximately 5,000. Sixty-four members had died. Twenty-two had been expelled.

During 1929 interest throughout the fraternity was centered on the convention to be held in Charleston in December. Everything combined to forecast the most significant convention in the history of the fraternity. The Charleston Alumni Chapter began early to organize their efforts. W. Hampton Mixson, Jr., Charleston, '13, was appointed General Chairman of the local committee. The committee was assisted by George E. Sheetz, Charleston, '23, who proposed to the Supreme Archon that the undergraduate delegates to the convention be given a more definite part in its program through a daily round table discussion of undergraduate chapter problems; and that the "news" of the convention be conveyed more quickly during its sessions to those who could not attend by means of daily issues of The Fokromix. Upon the adoption of the latter plan, William R. Blalock, Emory, '28, was designated as special editor in charge of the "convention daily." J. W. Robinson, Emory, '15, of Detroit, Michigan, was assigned leadership of the "undergraduate round table."

A committee, of which John D. Carroll, Past Supreme Archon, was elected chairman, had been appointed to make a survey of the desirability and the feasibility of establishing a general endowment fund. This committee met in Charlotte, North Carolina, in July, for discussion and for the formulation of a report for presentation to the Charleston Convention.

During the summer the official records of the fraternity were again brought up to date and a new directory of membership was prepared by Executive Secretary Leake and Assistant Secretary Blalock. Many innovations in the presentation of the data were introduced.

A committee, of which Harold A. Mouzon, Charleston, '13, was chairman, had also been appointed to arrange for the selection of a suitable type of memorial to be placed at the College of Charleston to commemorate the founding of the fraternity there in 1904. The plan adopted is best described in the words of the chairman:

"Every Pi Kappa Phi knows that the fraternity was founded at the College of Charleston in 1904, and that the approaching convention marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of its birth. The delegates to the Birmingham Convention rightly felt that this would be an appropriate time for the fraternity to place at the college an enduring memorial, which would not only mark its birthplace but also evidence the gratitude of the fraternity to the college which nurtured it in its infancy and whose fine ideals and high traditions have undoubtedly had a part in the phenomenal growth and prosperity of Pi Kappa Phi. . . .

The Supreme Archon appointed a committee of Charleston alumni to consult with the college authorities as to the form of the memorial. . . . The committee finally recommended that the memorial take the form of a gate on the college campus. . . .

The College of Charleston occupies a city block in the center of Charleston. While its campus is small, the time-mellowed buildings and ancient oaks and elms give it a quiet loveliness that might be envied by many a larger school. Our gate will pierce a high wall on the west, or College Street, side of the campus. The gate will be flanked with massive brick pillars spanned by a graceful arch, all covered with stucco colored to harmonize with the wall and the college buildings. On either pillar will be a bronze tablet, the one to the left inscribed: "At this College on December Tenth, Nineteen Hundred and Four was Founded the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity," and the right-hand tablet bearing the seal of the fraternity and the inscription: "This Memorial Gate erected by the Fraternity December Thirty-first, Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-nine." The gate proper will be of wrought iron in a graceful pattern with the Greek initials of the fraternity in the center. Through the iron grill the passersby on the street will glimpse the curving stone stairs and pillared portico of the main college building."

Through the years the power of the fraternity had been growing. As the resources of the national body had increased, the chapters were able to strengthen their own positions. The tenth edition of Baird's Manual, in 1923, listed the valuation of chapter house property for Pi Kappa Phi as $35,000. In 1929 the total valuation of chapter house property in the fraternity was over $500,000; a record which speaks for itself.

A gratifying degree of success has been achieved by members of the fraternity in the various fields of endeavor. When we recall the youth of the fraternity—that perhaps less than one thousand of its members are more than thirty-five years of age—the record is inspiring. A review of the lists of Who's Who in America and other such publications reflects credit upon the caliber of the men who have built the fraternity. A tentative list compiled by Will E. Edington, Illinois, '09, in 1928, shows that while the fraternity has had contacts with Phi Beta Kappa at only sixteen colleges and universities, twenty-two members of Pi Kappa Phi are also members of Phi Beta Kappa.

It has been said that "a college has character when its past has ripened into a well defined tradition and its future is directed by clear-cut aims." Surely the same is true of a fraternity. If ideals of fellowship, of culture, of intellectual superiority, of good citizenship, and of loyalty to the ties of friendship have become a tradition in Pi Kappa Phi, shall not the high aims which these ideals have engendered assure to the fraternity that greatness of character which will bring ever greater pride to all who are known as Men of Pi Kappa Phi? No better expression of this hope for the future has been found than that written by Supreme Archon Wagener, in The Star and Lamp for May, 1929:

MY VISION FOR PI KAPPA PHI³

Everyone has at some time visited a spot famous because there great events have taken place, there notable deeds have been done. Before his eyes in imagination has passed the procession of actors in the drama of centuries that are gone.

We remember how Childe Harold speaks in Byron's poem:

*"I stood in Venice on the Bridge of Sighs;
A palace and a prison on each hand;
I saw from out the wave her structures rise
As from the stroke of the enchanter's wand;
A thousand years their cloudy wings expand Around me."*

Here is one form of vision, the vision of the past.

There is also a vision of the future. Such is the vision of which Tennyson sings in "Locksley Hall":

"For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see, Saw the vision of the world and all the wonder that would be."

³ First used by Dr. Wagener in an address delivered at the installation of the Brooklyn chapter, November 28, 1928.

My vision for Pi Kappa Phi is based upon what has transpired as I look back upon the history of college fraternities and of Pi Kappa Phi. But the eyes with which I am looking are turned toward the future.

I see at the College of William and Mary, far back in Colonial times, a group banding itself together and taking as its motto the Greek words meaning "Philosophy the Guide of Life." I remember the story which tells how, as the Board of Visitors was seated in solemn conference, there appeared before the dignified assemblage a committee from Phi Beta Kappa presenting a proposal for that liberalizing of the curriculum which made William and Mary a true university with schools of natural science, law, medicine, and the modern languages, and government by the honor system. The mother fraternity was even then pointing the way which fraternities would follow in becoming a vital factor in the American college system.

With the founding at Union College in 1825 of the Kappa Alpha Society, of Sigma Phi and Delta Phi in 1827, begins the unbroken course of fraternity history. Fraternities came into being and multiplied because, first of all, they satisfied a desire for social advantages, for companionship, for sympathetic help in achieving the objectives of college life. Secondly, the fraternity provided a home which otherwise the boy entering college would not have had.

Into such a fraternity world in 1904 was born Pi Kappa Phi. I am not one to attribute to the founders of our fraternity, or in fact to the founders of any similar organization, a superhuman power of insight or foresight. Our founders were college boys. A condition existed, a need, an opportunity. Three men saw these more clearly than did others. They called together a group which they felt would be sympathetic and congenial. Of these eight men, all but one were Charlestonians. They had gone through school together.

Several had been friends from childhood. Their tastes were similar, their ideals of life alike. Surely there could have been no better basis for founding a fraternity.

Growth came about in the normal way as probably every fraternity has grown. On the part of our founders there was the natural desire to expand and to increase the prestige of the body which they had created. In other institutions there existed or came into being similar groups which felt that by affiliation they could increase their prestige and power. We must pay our tribute, however, to the men who unselfishly guided our fraternity in the years of her development. Because of their judgment, we can be proud of our slow, conservative growth, and of the fact that the ideals of social culture, high morality, and worthwhile achievement in every sphere of college life have been held high.

This is the past. What shall our vision of the future be? We are now a fraternity of forty chapters. We are like other fraternities in general constitution and administration. We uphold universal fraternity policies. Is there then no possible vision of a distinctive Pi Kappa Phi? I think that there is. Some may wish to find it in social exclusiveness. Some may choose scholarship, others athletics, others political domination. I find my vision in a complete, untemporizing interpretation and exemplification of brotherhood.

In essence a fraternity is the family. The chapter is the small family; the united chapters, the comprehensive family; the "gens" as the Romans conceived of it. If you will picture in your mind what family with its privileges and duties means to you and will transfer this outline tracing, as it were, to your fraternity, you will understand.

What is fraternity, other than a family of brothers? In college we are brothers working together. As alumni we are older brothers bound to the family by our interest in the younger brothers who are developing and meeting needs and problems which we can help them to face and solve.

Such is my vision of Pi Kappa Phi. A family of brothers with each man realizing the privileges and responsibilities which his membership therein entails and ready to give the best that is in him in doing his duty. I would have Pi Kappa Phi discard forever the evil accretions which have crept into the fraternity system and which make it the frequent butt of hostile criticism. I would not have her discard but rather exalt and intensify the noble traditions and ideals which have made the American fraternity such a force in campus life. If this becomes the dominant spirit of our fraternity, there are no heights to which Pi Kappa Phi cannot climb. The challenge is ours for the future.

VIII

GENEALOGY OF CHAPTERS

PI KAPPA PHI has established forty undergraduate chapters, of which two are inactive in 1929. In lieu of a history of each chapter, the following historical notes are given. Particular pains have been taken to credit those members whose individual efforts led to the installation of the chapters, entitling them to be known as Pioneers of Pi Kappa Phi. Such names are in heavy black type. The college name, rather than the official Greek letter name, is used first for sake of clarity:

1. CHARLESTON Alpha, December 10, 1904.
By the original seven, Andrew Alexander Kroeg, Jr., Lawrence Harry Mixson, Simon Fogarty, Jr., James Fogarty, Theodore Barnwell Kelly, Thomas Francis Mosimann, Anthony Pelzer Wagener. Chartered as a subordinate chapter, January 1, 1907, by Andrew Kroeg and Simon Fogarty. Chapter was inactive during 1914-15.
2. PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE Beta, March 16, 1907.
By contacts and friendships developed through intercollegiate relations with the College of Charleston. Chapter installed by L. Harry Mixson and Andrew Kroeg. Fraternities were officially banished from "P.C." in the spring of 1909, but the chapter continued a sub rosa existence until 1912. Chapter letters in the Journal were signed, "Beta, the Silent Sister"! The ban was removed in June, 1920, and through the efforts of J. Pressie McMillan, on February 5, 1921, the chapter was reinstalled by J. W. Setze, Jr., Supreme Secretary, and Richard L. Young, Supreme Editor, assisted by Henry G. Harper, J. Lawton Ellis, and representatives from each South Carolina chapter.
3. CALIFORNIA Gamma, January 11, 1909.
By Theodore Kelly, who transferred from Charleston to the University of California, and personally organized the petitioning group. The petition was read in Charleston on November 27, 1908, granted, and a commission to install the chapter forwarded to Kelly.

4. FURMAN

Delta, March 19, 1909.

By L. Harry Mixson and Andrew Kroeg. Due to anti-fraternity regulations at the university, the chapter was sub rosa. Its exact origin is unknown. Later the fraternity decided against sub rosa chapters and the charter was withdrawn, but there is evidence to show that it was operating as late as January 5, 1915. The ban was removed in 1927, and through the efforts of George W. Brunson and other alumni of Greenville, S.C., a petition was at once presented for a new charter. Due to uncertain administrative conditions at the institution, installation was postponed until 1929. The ceremonies were in charge of John D. Carroll, and took place on October 11.

5. SOUTH CAROLINA

Sigma, March 5, 1910.

By Wade Smith Bolt, who organized the Emmanon Club. Installed by L. Harry Mixson and Andrew Kroeg as Sigma Chapter, although it was but the fifth chapter, supposedly to give it the letter suggesting South Carolina. The South Carolina anti-fraternity statute of 1897 was in effect, but was not being enforced. In 1913 the faculty was reminded that it should enforce the law, and the fraternities were required to surrender their charters. The law was repealed in 1927. The night following this action eight members of Pi Kappa Phi at the university in Columbia formed the Sigma Club and petitioned for the charter of Sigma Chapter. The chapter was reinstalled October 15, 1927 by John D. Carroll, J. Cham Freeman, and George E. Sheetz, assisted by a delegation from Wofford, and in the presence of approximately 150 visiting members.

6. WOFFORD

Zeta, April 29, 1911.

By absorption of the Epicurean Club. Presumably named Zeta in error, as Epsilon was next alphabetically. Installed by L. Harry Mixson, Supreme Secretary, assisted by Andrew Kroeg, Thos. F. Mosimann, Gus. E. Reid, John D. Carroll, and others. This chapter also was sub rosa. It was entirely inactive from 1913 to 1916. Fraternities were reauthorized at Wofford December 22, 1915. The chapter was rechartered as of January 12, 1916, and the initiation took place on January 22, conducted by Herbert Langford, John D. Carroll, R. E. Moody, Bobo Burnett, and John D. Hamer.

7. DAVIDSON Epsilon, February 3, 1912.

By John T. Young of Presbyterian College (first archon). Installed by John D. Carroll and Wm. Monckton, Jr. The chapter became inactive November 8, 1917. In 1923, M. C. Stith, from the Stetson chapter, transferred to Davidson and immediately organized Kappa Phi, which petitioned for a charter. May 20, 1924, the chapter was reinstalled by George M. Grant, Supreme Secretary, assisted by Henry G. Harper and R. L. Young.

8. EMORY Eta, April 27, 1912.

By absorption of the Cross Keys Club. J. W. Robinson was the moving spirit in petitioning Pi Kappa Phi. Chapter installed by John Carroll, Harry Mixson, and Simon Fogarty.

9. CINCINNATI Theta, May 29, 1913.

By absorption of Delta Phi Beta. Installed by L. Harry Mixson. The Cincinnati Conservatory of Music was affiliated with the University of Cincinnati, but the chapter was withdrawn in 1915 due to the Conservatory rating as a professional institution.

10. GEORGIA TECH Iota, October 25, 1913.

By E. R. W. Gunn, Supreme Secretary. Installed by John D. Hamer, D. Guy Maxwell, John D. Carroll, E. R. W. Gunn, assisted by chapter representatives from Georgia and the Carolinas.

11. NORTH CAROLINA Kappa, November 14, 1914.

By Manuel Gonzales Quevedo, from the Georgia Tech chapter. Quevedo knew J. Shepard Bryan before going to North Carolina. They organized the petitioners. Installed by Herbert Langford and John D. Carroll. The first man initiated after installation was John L. Henderson, later Supreme Secretary; the next, Henry Green Harper, later Supreme Deputy Archon and Supreme Treasurer.

12. GEORGIA Lambda, January 16, 1915.
By E. R. W. Gunn, L. C. Fitts, and W. H. Brewton, of the Emory chapter. Installed by Gunn, who was Supreme Secretary.
13. DUKE Mu, May 6, 1915
By Manuel Quevedo, John L. Henderson, and Henry Harper. Installed by John D. Carroll, John Hamer, and Manuel Quevedo.
14. NEBRASKA Nu, October 20, 1915.
By absorption of Pi Gamma Theta. George Allen Odgers and Ed Partridge were the moving spirits here, the former opening the correspondence. Installed by John D. Carroll, Supreme Archon.
15. ROANOKE Xi, May 5, 1916.
By A. Pelzer Wagener, Charleston '06, who encouraged the petition of Phi Sigma Alpha. Installed by Robt. L. Fain and L. C. Fitts, of Emory, assisted by John D. Carroll, Supreme Archon, and Manuel G. Quevedo.
16. ALABAMA Omicron, April 17, 1917.
By absorption of Kappa Phi, which was organized by Wm. C. Randolph, inspired by L. V. Powell, of the Emory chapter, a former school mate. Installed by R. Gayle Nimocks, of Georgia Tech, and L. V. Powell.
17. OGLETHORPE Pi, May 16, 1918.
By Harold D. Edwards and J. Chester Reeves, of the Charleston chapter, William Randolph, of Alabama, and Louis Young Dawson, of Georgia Tech. Edwards first attempted to organize a group. The effort was continued during 1917-18 by Reeves and Randolph through a friend of the latter, Lester McClung. When both of these left Atlanta during the war, Louis Dawson took over and helped carry the petition through. Installed by the officers of the Georgia Tech chapter, Elyea D. Carswell, Louis Dawson, Jesse F. Carreker, and James W. Setze, Jr.
18. WASHINGTON AND LEE Rho, February 21, 1920.
By Arcy Ben Powell and James Reagan Simms, of Emory. Installed by J. W. Setze, Jr., Supreme Secretary, H. G. Harper, Charles Hazlehurst, Neveland Brand and the Roanoke chapter, en masse.

19. NORTH CAROLINA STATE Tau, April 24, 1920.

By absorption of Sigma Rho, organized in 1917. Installed by Henry G. Harper, Jr., and John D. Carroll, Supreme Counsellor, assisted by the North Carolina chapter.

20. ILLINOIS Upsilon, May 19, 1921.

By absorption of Gamma Sigma Kappa, which had been visited and encouraged by Wade Bolt and Lawton Ellis. Installed by Roy J. Heffner, Supreme Archon, J. W. Setze, Jr., Supreme Secretary, and George D. Driver, Supreme Councilman from the West.

21. TULSA Phi, May 21, 1921.

By absorption of Zeta Xi. Installed by Roy J. Heffner, George D. Driver, James W. Setze, Jr. Became inactive April 30, 1927.

22. STETSON Chi, May 21, 1921.

By absorption of Phi Beta Psi, organized in 1912. Installed by Henry G. Harper, Jr., Supreme Deputy Archon, J. Lawton Ellis, Supreme Treasurer, Nathan Mobley, and Pat Reese.

23. CORNELL Psi, November 24, 1921.

By absorption of the Komos Club. It is said that Leonard Stock, of Komos, met Herbert Hardy of California (Captain, U.S.M.C.) during the war. Hardy was a college mate of Roy Heffner, then Supreme Archon, and placed the matter before him. Installed by J. W. Setze, Jr., Supreme Secretary.

24. PURDUE Omega, November 24, 1922.

By absorption of Alpha Gamma Beta, through Wade Smith Bolt, South Carolina '12, who encouraged the petition to Pi Kappa Phi. Installed by George Grant, Supreme Secretary, George D. Driver, Supreme Alumni Secretary, Wade Bolt of the Supreme Advisory Board, assisted by a delegation from Illinois.

25. MERCER Alpha Alpha, February 16, 1923.

By James T. Ross, who transferred from the Georgia chapter, and at the invitation of the Panhellenic Council of Mercer organized Omega Pi to petition Pi Kappa Phi. Installed by George Grant, Supreme Secretary, Ray K. Smathers, District Archon for Georgia, assisted by a delegation from each Georgia chapter.

26. TULANE Alpha Beta, May 16, 1923.
By absorption of Lambda Sigma Epsilon. Installed by George M. Grant, Supreme Secretary, Thos. E. Buntin, District Archon for Alabama.

27. OKLAHOMA Alpha Gamma, May 26, 1923.
By Maurice Ellison, Horace Mann, James Sidney Perry, Hugh Graham, Edward Mars, Holly Anderson, Hugh Perry, and others who transferred from the Tulsa chapter and organized Pi Kappa to petition Pi Kappa Phi. Installed by George D. Driver, Supreme Alumni Secretary, Harvey L. Rice, and a delegation from the Tulsa chapter.

28. WASHINGTON Alpha Delta, February 23, 1924.
By absorption of Chi Upsilon Chi, originally a club composed of Canadian soldiers returned from the World War, through George Allen Odgers, of the Nebraska chapter, a graduate student at Washington. Installed by Roy J. Heffner, Past Supreme Archon, assisted by George Odgers.

29. FLORIDA Alpha Epsilon, February 23, 1924.
By R. P. Cureton, Stetson '26, and L. H. Poe and J. L. Knight of Georgia Tech, who organized Phi Beta Psi (the name of the local which became the Stetson chapter) to petition Pi Kappa Phi. Installed by George M. Grant, Supreme Secretary, Robt. T. Overstreet, Emory, '21.

30. OREGON AGRICULTURAL Alpha Zeta, December 21, 1924.
By absorption of Delta Phi Sigma. Inspected by George Allen Odgers. Installed by J. Boyd Oliver, of California, and Walter R. Jones, of Washington.

31. HOWARD COLLEGE Alpha Eta, April 25, 1925.
By absorption of Psi Delta, organized 1900. Installed by Geo. M. Grant, Supreme Secretary, George E. Sheetz, Executive Secretary, George B. Everson, District Archon for Florida.
32. MICHIGAN STATE Alpha Theta, May 9, 1925.
By absorption of the Orphic Society. Installed by Geo. E. Sheetz, Executive Secretary, and Elmer N. Turnquist, Illinois, '18.
33. ALABAMA POLYTECHNIC Alpha Iota, October 2, 1926.
By absorption of Tau Kappa Phi. Installed by Geo. M. Grant, Past Supreme Secretary, Leo. H. Pou, District Archon for Alabama, George E. Sheetz, Executive Secretary, J. Chester Reeves, Supreme Treasurer, and delegations from all nearby chapters.
34. MICHIGAN Alpha Kappa, March 12, 1927.
By absorption of Gamma Sigma. Installed by Elmer N. Turnquist, Supreme Secretary, and J. W. Robinson, Emory '15.
35. MISSISSIPPI Alpha Lambda, April 9, 1927.
By James Reagan Simms, Jr., Emory '23, who, immediately following the repeal of the Mississippi anti-fraternity law, organized Pi Alpha to petition Pi Kappa Phi. Installed by Leo H. Pou, District Archon for Alabama, assisted by J. Chester Reeves, Supreme Treasurer, Lamar Vinson, Georgia, '22, and delegations from nearby chapters.
36. PENNSYLVANIA STATE Alpha Mu, November 4, 1927.
By absorption of Chi Lambda Zeta. Installed by Paul Work, Carl Ostergren, and a delegation from Cornell.
37. OHIO STATE Alpha Nu, November 4, 1927.
By absorption of Lambda Sigma. Installed by Elmer N. Turnquist, Supreme Secretary, and John E. Havis, a charter member of the Alabama chapter, assisted by a delegation from Purdue.
38. BROOKLYN POLYTECHNIC Alpha Xi, November 28, 1928
By absorption of Psi Sigma, organized in 1901 by Albert W. Meisel and others. Installed by Kurt C. Lauter, District Archon for New York, H. D. Leake, Executive Secretary, and A. Pelzer Wagener, Supreme Archon, assisted by a delegation from the Cornell chapter.

39. IOWA STATE

Alpha Omicron, May 25, 1929.

By absorption of Beta Delta Rho. Installed by Geo. D. Driver, Past Supreme Archon, Eldon Kiffin, of Nebraska, and H. D. Leake, Executive Secretary.

40. SEWANEE

Alpha Pi, November 15, 1929.

By absorption of Kappa Phi, through Rudolph F. Dowdy, North Carolina, '29. Installed by Leo H. Pou, Supreme Historian, and John Will Gay, Jr., Howard '29.

FOREWORD

AN APPRECIATION

To those men to whom we wrote asking for information concerning members of whom we had lost record, and who replied most courteously and to the best of their knowledge, we wish to take this means to indicate our indebtedness to them and our appreciation of their efforts to assist us in making the directory as complete and accurate as time and the means at hand would permit. We would much prefer to respond to their aid in a more personal way, but circumstances will not permit. We hope that they will accept this brief message and the following work, in which they assisted materially, in lieu of a directly expressed appreciation.

AN EXPLANATION

In the immediately following chapter list we have endeavored to give you a bit more information concerning your fraternity mates than the ordinary directory contains. The scheme followed was, in order: The permanent home address of the individual, which in many cases, you will note, is in a different location; in such a situation the second, or business address is to be used for immediate results; following the member's occupation and business address, we have listed his attainments and chapter offices; and lastly, we have related his war record.

The geographical index contains the member's present location, usually his business address, and his chapter and chapter number for reference to the chapter list.

The alphabetical index contains a reference to the chapter list in the form of chapter and chapter number. In this index, deceased members of the Fraternity are marked with an asterisk (*).
